9. If an airport authority fails to meet these conditions and the Inspecting Party considers that as a result its operations are at risk, that Party may request immediate consultations. Failure to reach a satisfactory resolution within 15 days may result in the Inspecting Party suspending the operation under discussion. When justified by an emergency, the Inspecting Party can take interim action prior to the expiry of 15 days.

ARTICLE IV

HOST PARTY'S OBLIGATIONS

- Where preclearance is conducted in the territory of the Host Party, the Host Party shall permit the Inspecting Party:
  - to carry out, within the preclearance area, preclearance of travellers, their baggage, goods in their possession or goods that form part of their baggage destined to the territory of the Inspecting Party;
  - to inspect aircraft and aircraft stores destined to the territory of the Inspecting Party;
  - (c) to determine the procedures under which the inspections will be carried out and the utilisation of human resources.
- The Host Party shall ensure appropriate law enforcement assistance to the Inspecting Party's preclearance officers in accordance with this Article and Annex II.
- 3. Only the Host Party shall have the authority to conduct strip (body) searches and more intrusive searches.
- 4. Within the preclearance area, the Host Party shall:
  - authorize the Inspecting Party's preclearance officers to conduct frisk searches (pat downs) of travellers for preclearance purposes, and, in situations of danger to human life and safety, of any person entering the preclearance area;
  - (b) authorize the Inspecting Party's preclearance officers to detain travellers or persons referred to in subsection (a) of this paragraph for transfer to the appropriate authorities of the Host Party;
  - (c) authorize the presence of a preclearance officer from the Inspecting Party while a Host Party officer is conducting a strip (body) search. A preclearance officer shall not be permitted to observe a strip (body) search being performed on a member of the opposite sex. If no preclearance officer of the same sex is available, the preclearance officer may authorize any suitable person of the same sex to observe the search;
