Colonel Denison, police magistrate, was the first witness called at the afternoon session. He was asked as to the system of marking exhibits in the police court. He said they were marked by the clerk and kept in the clerk's office, but if the case went on to a higher court the papers would be sent on to the clerk of that court.

"What right have the detectives to have charge of papers?" he was asked by Mr. Hodgins.

"If a detective comes to 'me I will sign the warrant. I sign them by scores—hundreds in a single day. Those from Inspector Archibald come in bunches three inches high."

Curran Morrison, J.P., clerk of the police court, was next called. He said that he issued warrants as a justice of the peace, and that he often issued them without authorization from the crown attorney. He repeated Col. Denison's statement as to the custody of exhibits in the police court, and said that his office had nothing to do with papers coming into the hands of the police, which were not filed as exhibits in the court.

Sores Disfigured So He Dreaded to Appear in Public. No Rest Night or Day. Cuticura Ointment Cured.

"Six months age my face and throat all broke out and turned into a running sore. I did not bother about it at first, but in one week's time the disease had spread so rapidly over my face and throat and the burning itching sores became so painful that I began to seek relief in different medicines, but none seemed to give me any relief. The sores disfigured my face to such an extent that I dreaded to appear in public.

"I suffered terribly and could get no rest night or day. At last a friend advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I had about given up hope, but thought I would have one more try, and so I used a little Cuticura Cointment, and it helped me from the start. I continued using it and in six weeks' time was completely cured, and can say I would advise anyone suffering from skin disease to use Cuticura Ointment, as it is the best healing balm in the world."
