ST. LAWRENCE MARKET.

The St. Lawrence market was characterized by the regular Monday dullness. Receipts were small and prices generally showed no change. Receipts of grain were moderately large—400 bushels of wheat, 800 bushels of oats and 100 of fall wheat. Potato prices are, if anything, a trifle lower. On the stock market the market at first was quiet, but later showed a slight advance. The buying was based on a report that the city was still in a state of anarchy, and last night's riotousness had increased. The Russian troubles have been so much the motive for recent buying that it is believed that the market will exercise a predominating influence, and cause some setback from the present level or a little above it.

Marshall, Spader & Co. wired J. G. Beatty, King Edward Hotel, at the close of the market, 12,000,000, a decline of 1/4d in Liverpool, and a prospect of more steady business, cables and news from the near future. All these factors combined caused an early decline of about a cent a bushel, but the decline there was good buying, and closed at a slight advance. The buying was based on a report that the city was still in a state of anarchy, and last night's riotousness had increased.
