Some of the pupils of this class are learning noun-names, others names of actions and qualities of objects. Eli Bellemore, a blind young man, reads Moon's excellent type with fluency. He had learned the Boston, or square type, in the Flint School, State of Michigan, for two years, and for six months read the Roman type, at Dr. Morris' School. The conduct of the Boarders deserves all praise. The Girls, all of whom are grown up, do the whole work of the Establishment in a very satisfactory manner, and— with a single exception—without any remuneration. This is most important to the well-being of the Institution, as it renders the employment of servant girls unnecessary, and tends to promote the industrial training of the inmates.

A few acres of land adjacent to the Institution would be a desirable acquisition; such a property might be profitably cultivated as a garden by the Boys, affording them at once useful employment and healthful recreation.
