LIGHT BREEZE FOR THE RACE TODAY

Only Three Knots at 8 o'clock This Morning

Outlook Was for a Slow Contest in America's Cup Competition—The Shamrock to Leave on Shore the Nicholson Jacket.

Sandy Hook, N. J., July 17.—A wind of three knots strength from the north-east was blowing at 8 o'clock this morning when the time of the cup sloops began preparations for the day's race. It was a feeble, fiftal breeze. Capt. Burton cast a searching eye seaward from the deck of the Shamrock to observe wind and wave prospects.

Weather conditions a slow race, though both crews said the wind probably would haul into the south-east by the time the sloops reached the starting line. A southeast breeze would give the yacht a head to windward on the first leg of the triangular race; a broad reach for the second and closer race home for the third leg.

A slight haze lay over the sea that shimmered in the sun, which burned brightly in the clear sky.

Shamrock was the first to get her main-sail up. It flapped fully for a time in the light breeze. The challenger's crew also sent up headails in steps.

Both sloops tugged lightly at their moorings. A slow and soft on both racers, minor weaknesses disclosed in Thursday's struggle, have been corrected. The Shamrock will not carry in today's race the Nicholson jacket, designed to prevent back-windage from the main.

The up committee informed Capt. Burton that if the Shamrock carried the jacket in future races she would have to be re-measured.

Standing Grass $15.
Sussex Record.—The hay crop in county does not look very promising. Everything points to a light yield and it is thought that the crop this season will be much below the average, with prices correspondingly high. That the price of hay this fall and coming winter will be exceedingly high can be reckoned from the fact that sales have recently been made in Sussex and vicinity of standing grass at $10 per ton.

LATE SPORT

Chicago, July 17.—As a result of a sensational batting drive, Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, today threatened to oust George Slaughter, first baseman with St. Louis, from the batting leadership of the American League.

Speaker whaled his way from fourth place to second within a week, driving out eighteen hits in eight games, and boosting his average from .885 to .908. Slaughter's average is .804. Joe Jackson, the Chicago slugger, is trailing Speaker with an average of .868, while "Babe" Ruth, the home run king, dropped from second to fourth place with an average of .868. Ruth was batting .868 a week ago.

Ruth is leading the league in scoring, having crossed the plate 23 times. His of Washington failed to steal any bases during the week, but his 33 thefts remain the best kind, according to R. A. Weigel, in charge of the public department of retail jewelry stores in Chicago, and if he had not been so successful, he would have undoubtedly exploited the reverse effect.

"Visualizing the human interest appeal is the important factor in all effective window displays," said Mr. Weigel, and to the exemplification of this basic principle a great measure of success is the success of window displays is due.

"A display of sufficiently compelling interest to cause the average pedestrian to stop is an impression that is not so easily dispensed, whereas those that are to stop are apt to be valueless in influencing either direct or indirect results."

Intelligently conceived and consistently executed window displays are of great importance in stimulating jewelry sales and have an educational value that cannot be computed with respect to the average window display. The success of window displays is due to the fact that they are planned months ahead for one purpose, we are now working on one for the purpose of making a window display well under way for the Elks' convention in July, will, we feel certain, make folks "stop."

"In giving recognition through the medium of window publicity to historical events, festive occasions, or patriotic movements, we believe we are creating a permanent educational value of many of these important events."

"In planning our window displays we go back to the root of things and aim to make a window display that is as educational and research enable us to do it."

"Every one that stops naturally, does not remember a wedding ring, but this will remember that 'Mabel is to be married next month, let us go in and see some natural-looking dolls of average size. These dolls of the 'acting' in every window scene she tries for a first."

"There was one display, for instance, of soaps and washing powders. When shoppers saw this they stopped to look with far greater interest than they would look at the mere arrangement of soaps. The entire doll family was on the job doing the washing. There was a tub with soap and water. There were soap boxes hanging from the tub—a miniature tub with soap and water. Many of the dolls were shown hung on a clothes rack. Others were suspended from a clothes line that reached from one side of the counter to the other, and a doll of gingham was shown hanging there. Another doll was holding up the window cloth referring to the washday scene."

Coffee and groceries have been displayed in the same manner, the busy little figures causing people to stop to look and then to buy.
