Religious Groups Concerned Over By-Law

She says that the

The Newman group just members in this group pay student fees. She feels the by-law is not representing all students and has to be looked into.

"Spirituality is part of everyone",

Conference and has not had time

By Brunswickan Staff Writer -

to ur

ied

"Students are actually funding" the group, say Dwayne Sleep, president of the Intervarsity Christain Fellowship.

He feels the Student Union's decision to reconsider funding religious groups on campus in the middle of the term is bad timing. Something like this should be implemented at the first of the year, he says.

Sleep has had students in the group express concern towards the Student Union's decision to cut funding. Students pay student fees thus they expect these fees to fund groups on campus. Students in the group seem "to expect it to work this way", says Sleep.

To be on the executive of the group a student must be a Christian. But Sleep emphasizes that the group is opened to anyone who wants to come and all the activities are publicized on campus. Sleep also says that pamphlets had been put in all frosh packs this year.

Sleep is concerned about the extent that they are not funding being cut but says, "funding has only gone on for 3 years and we undertake our own fundraising anyway because we need more (money) than what the Student Union gives us".

NEWS

Sleep does not see many problems arising with the SRC deciding on what groups should be funded on campus. To his knowledge funding is related to the number of people in a group. You "have to have an established group and have to use common sense", states Sleep. He feels that the SRC should "leave it (funding) up to Campus Ministry to distinguish whether or not it is a valid group" to fund.

Catherine Kerr, one of the founders of the Newman Group, says she can not talk on behalf of the group. But since the group survived before funding was received from the SRC she feels it will continue to survive.

Yet Kerr feels that the "Student Union fees are supposed to support things I want to be By Allan Carter involved in". She feels her student fees are not being used to

Social Work Fair

Kevin Arnold By

of Social Work students of Saint Offenders, and Women and Social Thomas University are hosting Work: A Feminist Perspective. the second annual Social Fields work. Areas covered will include:

Welfare, The Elderly, Family The third year Bachelor Health, Corrections: Young The third year students

Special Needs Children, Child group.

Kerr claims.

on November 24. According to businesses for donations and a Steven Parker, Co-ordinator of the event, Residence Administration participate in the event. Neville small traditional ceremony.

At around 10:00 am the Hall also. fundraisers will leave campus at Beaver Foods will be setting resident, feels the Bed Push has Montgomery Street, proceed up up a breakfast for the "travellers" become "a significant event in the College Hill Road then go on Nov 25, Saturday morning. the residence community". onto Regent Street then on to the The Bed Push at that time will be Neville House is hoping to see a Trans-Canada highway. between Fredericton and St. John. good turnout at the Bed Push An unusual Fundraiser that Parker says the breakfast will be next Friday. started last year, the Bed Push sct up at 9:30 am.

directed in funding the Newman Kerr emphasizes that her cultural activities. opinions do not necessarily reflect that of the group. But the funding is through membership Newman group is small, but group does have plans to make a fces which are around 5 dollars formal response.

Biligil, Ertugral president of the Muslim Student SRC. Association say that their group has 2 major activities a year that survive but (it) will be hard". The he would define as cultural. group "is part of our life", he Nevertheless he feels that the says and they will definitely have hosted a Major Atlantic SRC should change their views problems without the money.

to look into the SRC's decision, and ideas about religious and

DEADLINE - Wednesdays, 12 pm

The group's only other per person. He feels the group should get funding from the

He says they "can

Bed Push Pushes Forward

raises funds for the Empty

The second Annual Neville Bank right here in Fredericton. House Bed Push will take place The house is canvassing local bc "apt to travel".

box will be set up in McConnell participate in the Fundraiser.

The Mechanical Engineering Stocking Fund Telethon in Saint Department will be looking after John and the Fredericton Food the hospital bed used in the push, says Parker, in order that it will

Parker expects "at least fifty donation box was placed in the people" from Neville House to the group will be leaving Neville Building. Parker claims there is House is hoping to see other House and going to Tibbits for a a good possibility that a donation communities in the province

Phil Thériault, past Neville of Practice Fair on Thurday will be on hand to answer November 23 from 9:00am until questions and provide information 3.00pm at the Student Union about the profession of social Building Blue Lounge, UNB. work and some of its fields of Information presented practice as well as will focus on several particular services/resources available fields of practice within social within our community.

All students are invited Adult Children of Alcoholics, to this public awareness fair.

Singapore Political Secretary Emphasizes Connections

Press Release

Mr. Ng, who 'studied mechanical engineering while at Ng Pock Too (centre with UNB, is interested in glasses), a 1968 graduate of the strengthening ties between his a University of New Brunswick and country and Canada, and was currently political secretary to the closely involved with Prime prime minister of Singapore, Minister Mulroncy's recent visit chats with Singapore students at to Singapore. During his trip to a reception in Fredericton in UNB, Mr. Ng emphasized the September. Over 35 students importance of connections made E from Singapore are enrolled at while in university and urged g students to make as many of UNB this year. these as possible.

