AFFAIRS IN IRELAND.

BY CABLE FROM IRISH SPECIAL NEWS AGENCY London, March 1, 1883.—The Parliamentary prospect was very gloomy for the Irish party at the beginning of the week. Forster's speech was an immense success for the moment. During the two hours of its delivery it was drunk in eagerly by a crowded house. In all parts of the house Parnell was said to be crushed. The Irish leader listened attentively and was absolutely unmoved during the whole course of the ex-Chief Secretary's venomous attack upon him. The first retrieval of the position was the speech of T. P. O'Connor, which put the Government on its defence. It was the most effective speech the Member for Gaiway has yet delivered in the house.

Parnell's speech was most eagerly looked forward to, as he had obstinately refused forward to, as he had obstinately refused to be drawn out for several nights. The English press howls more than ever, but Irish national opinion is unanimous that it was the most dignified and effective address Mr. Parnell has delivered for years. Justin McCarthy, in a telling speech, proved Forster's complicity in the assassin-ation plots of Mazzini. These various inaticn plots of Mazzini. These various incidents cooled the first ardor of the reception accorded to Forster, and his defeat was complete when he was thrown over openly by Trevelyan, who said he regretted the speech of his predecessor. Chamberlain completed his discomfiture by beldly repeating the declaration, that coertification. The amount lost on C. M. B. A. probably repeating the declaration, that coertification. William O'Brien, who already ranks among the most impressive speakers in the House, pointed on Monday night with fierce truth to the disgraceful jury packing which is carried on in Dublin. He showed conclusively that the Emergency juries which have tried all the recent cases are almost whether I be legally liable or not. It is not improbable but I could be held legally liable for the sum lost. However, I am glad to be able to state that our Canadian Branches will not allow me to lose by my position in their Council, whether I be legally liable or not. on Tuesday last Trevelyan made the worst speech which has yet been delivered on the distress in Ireland. He declared that the people in certain districts in the West could no longer hope to live there as they have acquired the habit of drinking tea, using flour for food and buying dresses in the shops. The famine-famished peasants of Glencolumbkille made a HungerDemonstration on Thursday, February 8. Two thousand gaunt and foodless children of "dark Donegal" clamored for bread and work before a Dr. Woodhouse, who, as Government Inspector, visited that district on the above date. Father Gallagher told the Government Inspector some home truths before the people. He recounted how he, Dr. Woodhouse, was the fourth inspector that came down to report upon them within a few months; and the exaggergated reports of the quartet, amongst whom was Chief Secretary Trevelyan, did not bring sea-weed devouring people a penny of Government aid, or a potato out of a Government store. If, cried the priest, even the cost of these inspections was sent down, it would have done something— lighted some fires, filled some stomachs, saved some flickering lives. But what have these inspections resulted in? Nothing, absolutely nothing, save disappointed hopes amongst the people and additional charges on the borne-down ratepayers. In glowing contrast to the do-nothing In glowing contrast to the do-nothing attitude of the Government, another priest, who was present, Father McFadden, made feeling allusion to the private aid he had received, and referred especially to the brave help given him by two gentlemen in Belfast, differing from him and his people in faith, Messrs. Marcus Ward and Forster Green.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH, NAPANEE. In company with Mr. Richardson fresco painter, of Belleville, we had the pleasure a few days ago of inspecting decoration work of St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, recently performed by that gentleman, and which has transformed the edifice into one of the most formed the edifice into one of the most chaste and elegant places of worship in the district. The Treatment for a Cold.

The Monthly Magazine (London) reports of Dr. Graham as saying that it is not a correct practice, after a cold is caught, to make the room a person sits in much warmer than usual, to increase the quantity of bed clothes, wrap up in flannel, and drink a large quantity of hot tea, gruel, or other slops, because it will invariably increase the feverishness, and, in the majority of instances, prolong rather than lessen the duration of the cold. It is well known that confining inoculated persons in warm rooms will make their smallpox more violent, by augmenting the general heat and fever; and it is for the same reason that a similar practice in the present complaint is strended with a viber of the same reason that a similar practice in the present complaint is strended with a viber of the same reason that a similar practice in the present complaint is attended with a viber of the same reason that a similar practice in the present complaint is attended with a vibration of the cold. and rever; and it is for the same reason that a similar practice in the present complaint is attended with analogous results, a cold being in reality a slight fever. In some parts of England, among the lower order of the people, a large glass of cold spring water, taken on going to bed, is found to be a successful remedy, and in fact many medical practitioners recompany. fact many medical practitioners recom-mend a reduced atmosphere and frequent draughts of cold fluid as the most efficacious remedy for recent cold, particularly when the patient's habit is full and plethoric.

Dr. Graham further says:

It is generally supposed that it is the exposure to a cold or wet atmosphere which produces the effect called cold, whereast is returned. whereas it is returning to a warm tem-perature after exposure which is the real cause of the evil. When a person in the cold weather goes into the open air, every time he draws in his breath the cold air passes through his nostrils and windpipe into the lungs, and, consequently, dimin-ishes the heat of these parts. As long as the person continues in the cold air he feels no bad effect from it; but as soon as he returns home, he approaches the fire to warm himself, and very often takes some warm and comfortable drink to keep out the cold, as it is said. The inevitable the cold, as it is said. The inevitable consequence is, that he will find he has taken cold. He feels a shivering which makes him draw nearer the fire, but all to no purpose; the more he tries to heat himself, the more he chills. All the mischief is here caused by the violent action of the

It is hardly possible to give an idea of the general effect produced by the chaste designs and harmonious combination of colours in the whole work—the ediffice has to be seen to be admired. On Sunday evening last by gaslight the church looked a model of decorative art, and the congregation were delighted with the transformation. All that is now required to put St. Patrick's Church on a level with the other churches of the town is a bell, and Rev. Father McDonagh, to whom a large measure of credit is due for the great improvement effected in the building, assures us that this much needed addition will soon be made.—Napanee Express. What are they? Why so called? They are called night crucifixes because the beau ties they possess can only be seen and appreciated by night. Wherever they are placed, whether in church, or private sanctuary, on altar, or on a bracket in the bed-chamber, they alone at night, when darkness covers all, can be seen shining with a steady white glow, a last inspiration to devotion. Cases of Fair Dealing in the Desert of Human Life.

In some cases recently the newspapers are speaking of equity ruling where the law does not give a remedy—especially in the case of a corporation (corporations are often souliess). The Louisiana State Lottery Company—a lady complained her ticket (winning one half of No. 43.713, which drew the first prize of $30,000 had been fraudulently obtained; after litigation the contestants compromised amicably, each taking half. A lady residing in New York city had jost her ticket in the mail, but on application to M. A. Dauphin, President of the Louisiana State Lottery Co., at New Orleans, La., obtained the number, learnt it had drawn $10,000, filed a caveat, proved her right, and after a proper delay had her money paid to her. Such acts make one think that there are oases of fair dealing in the desert of human life.
