DEAVOR MOVEMENT

the President-Founder of It, Rev. Francis E. Clark, Writes of the Recent Great Convention and What It Means to the Civilized World.

I have been asked to write concerning the result and significance of the recent Christian Endeavor convention at Washington. It is too early as yet, perhaps, to tell the results of the convention, but it is not too early to inquire into its profound significance. The fact that 40,000 young people should come together in the hottest month of the year, in one of the hottest cities of the country, to attend a purely religious convention is in itself significant. Nor are these figures approximate estimates or wild guess work. Thirty-one thousand one hundred and twelve Endeayorers actually registered. Four thousand and six hundred more, by actual count, were in the choirs, and-the careful committees were convinced that 9,000 other visitors were in attendance upon the convention. I have been asked to write concern

Convention.

On many occasions throughout the convention the three enormous tents, Washington Williston and Endeavor, were crowded to their utmost limit, while thousands stood outside, within ear-shot of the speakers' voices; and at the same time perhaps half a dozen churches, the largest that could be obtained, were filled to overflowing.

But what brought these young people together in such vast numbers? The But what brought these young people together in such vast numbers? The impelling motive is the significant feature of the convention. It was, as I have said, a purely religious convention. The early morning prayer meetings were a characteristic feature. Nearly 30 churches were simultaneously filled morning after morning with the praying hosts.

The convention closed, as always, with a serious and delightful consecration service, participated in by 40,000 people in the various auditoriums. The highest motives were appealed to from the first day to the last. The 000 people in the various auditoriums. The highest motives were appealed to from the first day to the last. The religious appirations of the assembled throngs were the harp of a thousand strings, upon which every speaker played. The speakers felt no necessity of descending to claptrap or sensationalism. Their character would have prevented this had the audience desired it, but there was no wish on the part of the audience for anything but the deepest and the strongest truths. If it has ever been thought that young people must be coaxed and earlief on sugar-coated and thoroughly disguished by sensationalism, this convention and other international conventions of the Christian Endeavor Society have forever dismissed the idea. And yet it must not be thought that there is anything unduly solemn and lugubrious about this great assemblage of young Christians. No one who was in Washington during the convention could have obtained this idea. The streets of the city were helpeds with their fluttering badges. The nine songs; and when they came ght!" testified.

Entries for the exhibition have already begun to reach the Secretary.

Never before in the history of Unionville Fair have so many applications for prize lists been received by the Secretary as this year. This indicates that we are to have a large number of new members and exhibitors.

A. H. Swartz has applied for space to make a large display of parlor and bedroom furniture. He says he will put in the best lot over shown at a country fair in Ontary

W. F. Earl, Athens, will have a full line of Copp Bros. furnaces, ranges and heaters on exhibition, as well as a large assortment of porcelain and agate ware. It is expected that A. L. Murray, Brockville, will make a large display of photographs, and that Robert Craig, Brockville, will have a larger display than for the last two years.

Prince Leo, the aeronaut, who is to make balloon ascensions from the fair grounds the last two days, writes the Entries for the exhibition have Secretary that he has decided to bring ready began to reach the Secretary.

THE SNAKE'S VENOM.

ANTIDOTE FOR THE DEADLY

Showing Exactly How a Serpen

A new antidate for snake venous has been discovered. The inventor is Professor Phisalis, a French solentist.

The great merit and novelty of this antidote is the simplicity of its preparation. The process by which it saves a person from the effects of snake bite is the same as in the antidoxins of Dr. Fraser and M. Calmetta, which have been recently made public.

M. Phisalix prepared his antidots by passing venom through a Pasteur muscle which raises under jaw; it, obtained an amber-like powder, which it is necessary to keep away from the light in order to preserve its virulence. This method of dessication enabled the professor to weigh infinitesimal quantities of venom with great exactitude. The method of measuring venom by counting the liquid drops is necessarily uncertain. A small difference in the quantity of snake venom may be of great importance.

sarily uncertain. A small difference in the quantity of snake venom may be of great importance.

Publessor Phiess made a solution of one part of dry venom to 1000 of water, which immediately before filtration was further diluted to 1 in 5000. This liquid was passed through a Pasteur filter, the most effective instrument of its kind in existence.

The quantity of this solution before filtration needed to kill a guinea pig of seventeen ounces was about one-third of a grain. After filtration Professor Phisalix found that the solution did not kill the animal. It was therefore proved that the filter retained the poisonous part of the venom, and that the solution remaining possessed a power of immunizing the blood against the poison.

Forty-eight hours after an injection of the solution in a guinea pig, it was able to resist an inoculation of venom which would have killed two or three unprepared animals of its kind. Further

POINTED TOES MUST GO.

The uttra-fashionable youth will have no trouble in standing squarely upon their own feet, instead of bearing down upon their neighbors' pedal extermittes with the useless projections of the old-style shoe.

There have been many styles of shoes worn by different styles of men, but the pointed toe maintained its

NEW AND OLD STYLES OF SHOW.

Supremacy longer than any of them.
But, like all else, it has had to give way to the dictates of Dame Fashion, and fall styles show a wider range of round and square-toed shoes than has been in stock for many a long day, while there is less variety of pointed toed shoes than ever before.

The shoe that is coming in the place of the pointed shee is one that is known. The shoe that is coming in the place of the pointed shoe is one that is known as the "buildog," which has a raised, round, blunt ioe. The reason for calling the shoe "buildog" is because of the dog's head in form. This will be the fashionable shoe this fall. The "buildog" shape is a finer comfortable shoe and is a more sensible looking article than the old style of pointed shoe. Another reason for pointed shoes going out of style is the fact that cheap manufacturers are making them, at a much more reduced price than manufacturers of high grade shoes can comrete with.

The fine trade and public opinion in general have set decidedly against the needle pointed shoe and the "coin" and "buildog" shaped lasts now have the preference.

The Wexford Orchestra furnished music for the occasion.
