

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., MAY 24, 1889

Our Queen.

To-day our gracious sovereign Queen Victoria enters upon the 70th year of her age, and to-day will the hearts of her loyal subjects in all quarters of the globe beat in unison while they offer up their thanks to Almighty God for the preservation of her life through all these years.

God save our gracious Queen, Long live our noble Queen— God save the Queen. Send her victorious, Happy and glorious, Long to reign over us— God save the Queen.

The Exhibition.

The Executive Exhibition committee held their adjourned meeting in the Court House, Kentville, Tuesday, 21st—the School Commissioners meeting at the same place and time.

The prize list was completed, rules and regulations adopted, and a printing and advertising committee appointed. The prize list is a liberal one, as large an amount being appropriated to many classes as was appropriated to those classes at the Provincial Exhibition in '85.

New Roads.

In another column appears a communication referring to building lots in the village. The writer seems to be somewhat concerned in consequence of a proposed new road in the central and business portion of the town and can see no other use of a road than to provide building lots for future purchasers.

The effort of our correspondent to court favour with the Municipal Councilors shows entire ignorance of county matters, as any one of the present constituted board of Councilors would tell him if he should ask them that the committee on roads and bridges have no more to do with the consideration of petitions for new roads than has the committee on assessment and appeals to do with the auditing of the accounts of the sheriff.

"Book of Wonders."

(L. L. DAVISON.)

No. 4.

The next article we come to is "Content," an article characteristic of the author, who was always cheerful and contented. This is what he says of content:—

CONTENT.

"My crown is in my heart, not on my head; Not decked with diamonds nor Indian stones; Nor to be seen: my crown is called content; A crown it is that seldom kings enjoy."

"This world's a wilderness of woe," is what I heard an old man say the other day. That's just like some people. They wouldn't be satisfied with anything. That same man always wants rainy weather when it's dry, and vice versa. Look at the great Northwest; look at the Bermudas, "where everlasting spring abides"; and look at our own little village, and they say, "This world's a wilderness of woe."

Content is a funny thing some ways. It doesn't make much difference how poor one's clothes are; how much flour costs; or how much one owes so long as he has a little of it. Content and happiness go hand in hand along the great highway of life, and if you meet one you meet both.

But there are two different kinds of content. There is a kind we like to see, and there's a kind we don't. You very often see a man walking about the streets, in his shirt sleeves, his hands in his pockets, and whistling "All for money," refusing work and with not a cent to pay his many debts. He acts as though he didn't have very much sorrow, but that kind of content doesn't count for much except to the possessor.

Again there's the other kind. There's the man who flourishes amid adversity and smiles at misfortune. There's the man who "counts not his lot obscure," even though he can get but 75 cents a day for hard labor, but goes home happy. We like to see that kind.

Now, a friendly word of advice in conclusion. You know "work never kills people," but grumbling and fretting does. Therefore don't complain even when you do lose your vote; even when the weather doesn't suit you; and when you can't have things exactly as you would like to. But be content with life and it will stay with you longer and you'll enjoy it more.

On the next page is "Green." This article was written in the spring of '87, and as a humorous production it exceeds a wonder it is that he never submitted it for publication. How many articles there may be that were really meritorious that have perished on account of modesty or self-depreciation on the part of the author. How many more that might have been read and appreciated that were thrown aside, neglected, and lost, to the might-have-been reader. If the public could realize the amount of enjoyment there is in reading there would be fewer papers thrown down with a glance for want of time. The article after "Content." Let us shun the one and seek the other.

GREEN.

"Man wants but little here below, Nor wants that little long." That's just what I think exactly. Don't wish for everything you see. There was a man in the States by the name of Vanderbilt died the other day worth two hundred million dollars. That's a big pile of money, for one man, but he hasn't got that now. He isn't worth a cent now. Shortly after he died his will was read and between his children and the lawyers they got it all away from him.

Then there's Jay Gould. I heard he made nine million dollars in one week this spring. Just to think of that! I think that's too much for even Jay Gould to make in one week. I never made nine million dollars in all my life! A million in the bank, a $50,000 house and a railway pass would be all I would want.

Sam Tilden has got the best house in New York city. I suppose it cost nearly a million. I think that's going too steep, especially for a man like Tilden. I wouldn't live in such a house!

As to farms, I would say that I couldn't ask for a farm like Bell's. To think of one man owning a farm 100 miles square! A farm of 200 acres is big enough for any man.

As to the fish question, I would say, "Let the Yankees have all the fish they can get"—outside, of course, the three-mile limit. I don't like to see even fishermen too grasping. We may want to get some fish from the Yankees some day. I say, give them all the fish they want. There's the gulf of Mexico, the Pacific ocean, and the Mississippi river; if that doesn't satisfy them, why, they're greedy too!

The Excelsior Dyes will dye more goods than any dyes made and will dye brighter and more brilliant colors, they are sold at all druggists and grocers at only 8 cents.

School Commissioners' Meeting.

The Commissioners of Schools held their annual meeting in the Court House, Kentville, on Tuesday, 21st, inst.

Eleven Commissioners were in attendance and they elected William Eaton, Esq., chairman for the incoming year.

After the reading of minutes, inspector's report, and some routine matters were attended to the following business was transacted:

Resolved.—1. That Sand Hill and Woodville sections be notified to repair school houses or they will be liable to lose the County school grant.

2. That Canaan, Alton and Australia must repair their school houses and put them in good condition or the grants will be withheld from these sections.

3. That the school house in Davison St., section No. 68, be condemned as unfit for use.

4. That Gasperian section, No. 70, be notified to provide a suitable room for Primary Department of their school under penalty of forfeiture of grant.

The following petitions were then presented and considered:

1. From T. H. Grace, praying to be set from Somerset into Berwick section. As Mr. Grace had not posted notice of his intention to apply to the Board for this change in the sections affected, five days previous to the Commissioners' meeting, the petition was referred back for compliance with the law in this respect.

2. From Ernest Griffin, Joseph Cleveland and Freeman Larkins asking to be transferred from White Rock to Greenwich section. Granted.

3. From James and Albert Elderkin to be set from Wolfville into Greenwich. By vote of the Board this matter was referred to the Inspector to report more fully at the next meeting.

The chairman requested W. E. Roscoe, Esq., to make a statement concerning the school land funds of Cornwallis. He reported that about $2,700 would soon be at the disposal of the Board for the schools in Cornwallis and moved the following resolution which was seconded by L. DeV. Chipman, Esq., and passed unanimously.

Resolved, That twenty-five dollars be paid from the accumulated school land funds to each section in Cornwallis and such part of 25 dollars to each section partly in Cornwallis as shall be proportioned to the amount of assessable property of Cornwallis in each section as compared with the whole assessable property in the section and that the balance of the fund be reserved—to be used in purchasing books, maps and other educational appliances for use in the schools of Cornwallis and to be distributed among the schools there as the Board shall subsequently order, and that orders on the Municipal Treasurer be issued accordingly.

It is probable that this money will be ready for payment in June next, and it will be necessary for the trustees of each section entitled to receive it to have an order on the Treasurer of the County signed by the chairman and clerk of the Board of School Commissioners before they can draw it.

In the case of those sections situated partly in Cornwallis it will be necessary for the trustees to furnish the Inspector of Schools a certified copy of the amount of assessable property, (1.) in the whole section, (2.) of that part of it in Cornwallis.

Building Lots.

A CORRECTION.

A few weeks ago an article appeared in the ACADIAN over my signature referring to building-lots in the village. My object in writing was two-fold, first to show that there was no scarcity of such lots, as had been represented by more than one newspaper out of the county; and secondly that they were obtainable without the imposition upon the public of additional taxation. In support of this last contention I instanced the grounds of Mr. Otis Harris and the lot owned by the heirs of the late T. L. DeWolf, and remarked further that if a road were opened across the lands of Mr. Randall and Mr. Dodd, which the proprietors would "probably" do if there should be a demand for lots, that the present wants of the village in the village which would involve taxation both direct and indirect. This, I contend, should be avoided as long, at least, as no absolute need exists for the imposition of the burden and the more especially so, as there is a prospect of additional taxation in the near future, and to a very considerable amount in connection with the proposed water-works. This last addition to existing charges, necessary and unnecessary, wise and unwise, is probably about as much as the average citizen is disposed to bear—when a real want is felt for building-lots, that cannot be obtained without resorting to a new impost, it will be time enough to call upon the public to put their hands in their pockets and open an additional street. This is probably the view which the Municipal Council took of the matter—and as we have thought them worthy from their intelligence and integrity to be placed in a position of trust and influence, and as they are necessarily disinterested parties in the case, let us reserve our blame for other more certain and serious omissions and offences.

Since writing my former article the ACADIAN has informed us of the design of Mr. Starr to place a number of lots in the market; if this is so there is still less need than before of saddling the public with additional taxation.
