Windsor's Merchants' Day. Everyone who has recently visited Windsor has been surprised at the progress made in rebuilding the town. It is safe to say that a year ago no one would venture to predict that over five hundred solid, substantial buildings would be finished in twelve months time. Yet it has been done. Water Street in particular, with its line of solid brick and stone buildings would be a credit to any city.

It used to be said that Windsor merchants were not up to the times, but they have proved this the reverse of correct by putting in immensely fine stock of goods in great quantity. Just now, when the stores are replete with their Christmas goods and beautiful with their holiday decorations, they will repay a visit. The merchants of Windsor as will be seen by this advertisement in this issue, invite the people of the Province to visit the town on Merchants' Day, Dec. 21st, and see what has been done and buy their Christmas supplies at the same time. We can assure you you will be repaid for your trouble, and the shopper hardest to please cannot but be satisfied with the bargains offered.
