DROVE HER TO SUICIDE.

Prosecution in Snead Case Trying to Prove This Was Done.

Say Dead Woman Told Her Husband Was Dead.

Mrs. Snead's Mother Objects to Going to New York.

New York, Dec. 23.—Although Mrs. Caroline B. Martin, mother of Okey Snead, has been indicted with her two sisters for the murder of the East Orange bath tub victim, the New Jersey authorities have not yet obtained possession of Mrs. Martin's person, and the self-willed elderly woman is determined not to be taken from New York States without a fight. To-day her attorney, Col. Robert J. Hain, announced that he would at once take steps for bringing habeas corpus proceedings to test the strength of the case against his client.

Alternative indictments have been found against Mrs. Martin, Miss Virginia Wardlaw and Mrs. Mary Snead under which they may be tried either as having directly caused the death of Okey Snead or abetted her in suicide. This was held to-day to indicate that the prosecutors mean to leave no avenue through which the elderly trio can escape the alleged responsibility of having provided the instruments through which the tragedy was enacted.

Some of the evidence which was presented to the grand jury in support of the charge that a plot existed against Mrs. Okey Snead became known to-day. An important point was made in the presentation of documentary and other evidence to show that letters written by Mrs. Snead to her absent husband, Elmer Snead, were unmailed and that his letters to her were intercepted. Meanwhile, it was alleged, Mrs. Snead was told that her husband was dead and that she had nothing to live for.

OBITUARY.

Sudden Deaths of Two Respected Residents To-day.

The death occurred unexpectedly this morning of Mrs. Chester Williams, a resident of this city for many years, and a daughter of the late Isaac Kelly, of Amherst. She leaves besides a husband one brother, Philip Kelly, Oakville, and one sister, Mrs. Alex. McGregor, Boardman, N. C. The time of the funeral will be announced later.

Amid a large number of floral offerings, the remains of Mrs. Aylmer J. Clarke were laid to rest in Hamilton cemetery yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Isaac Couch officiated at the house and grave in the presence of a large number of friends. The pall-bearers were A. McEneaney, C. Irish, Ralph Bowers, George Sharpe, F. A. Clarke and J. J. Gibson. Among the flowers were pieces from departments N and N2, Robert Simpson & Company, Toronto, and from the Ladies' Aid of Central Methodist Church.

Rev. Dr. Hooper officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Eliza Towersey, which took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon from her late residence, 168 King street east, to Hamilton cemetery. The pall-bearers were H. E. Cott, H. S. Moore, Wm. Somerville, J. Taylor, L. Gillett and John Callaghan.

An old and esteemed citizen passed away at an early hour this morning, in the person of Mrs. Abram Swayze, at her residence, 17 Earl street, after a few hours' illness. Mrs. Swayze underwent an operation about a year ago, and recovered to almost good health again. She retired last evening about 8 o'clock, feeling quite well, and had two or three hours' sleep, and awakened about 11 o'clock, feeling a pain over her heart.

Dr. Dickson was called, and did what could be done for her, and left about 1 o'clock this morning. Two or three minutes later she passed away. Mrs. Swayze was born in Salford 72 years ago, and she and her husband had been living in the city the last 37 years. She was the daughter of Jeremiah Lee, Salford, and Mrs. Swayze's many friends in the country and city will be pained to hear of her death. She was a kind and estimable woman, and was liked by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and one daughter, Mrs. A. W. Swayze, Barton street east, this city. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, from her husband's residence, 17 Earl street, to Hamilton cemetery.

THE WATSONS.

Poet's Wife Indignant at Brother's Charge of William's Insanity.

New York, Dec. 23.—The Sun has received this message from Mrs. Watson, who, with her husband, the poet, is now in Havana:

"Mr. Robinson Watson's message to New York newspapers is a wicked attempt to ruin my husband's reputation. It accords well with his conduct for years past."

Robinson Watson, who is a brother of the poet, wrote to certain newspapers a few days ago from Montreal a long statement to the effect that his brother was mentally unbalanced, and that his much discussed poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," was due to that condition.

LOTS OF THEM.

Turkeys Cheap and Plentiful in London Market.

(Special Wire to the Times.) London, Dec. 23.—Never in the history of London market has there been such a glut of turkeys as poured in from all points of the district this morning, in anticipation of prices being 25 cents per pound. Toronto, Hamilton and Brantford buyers, who were here earlier in the week, had all gone, and the bottom steadily dropped out of the market and choicest birds sold for 16 and 17 cents, where on Tuesday they were at 22 and 23 cents.

Friend With Good Intentions. Mrs. Holt could be depended upon when repeating her remarks. "We know she means all right."

"Isn't it queer how differently things affect people?" one of Mrs. Holt's neighbors said to her the day after a beach picnic. "We both got tired to death, you and I, but you say you've had just a bit of indigestion while I have this fearful blind headache."

"Why, that's perfectly natural," said Mrs. Holt cheerily. "Of course when people are tired out it goes straight to the weakest part of them. Mine is my stomach and everybody knows yours is your head, poor dear!" From the Youth's Companion.

New $8 Col'd Net Waists $5

Second Floor—

JUST in time for the puzzled gift buyer has come to us a great special purchase of the very latest thing in Colored Net Waists.

This beautiful consignment consists of handsome Waists in taupe, rose and grey, and are the best value we have ever been able to get at the price asked.

The trimmings of these extraordinary waists are of silk strapings and dainty frills on the collar and sleeves. The latter are the new Bishop style.

This special purchase lot of Colored Nets should really sell for $8.00. They are our very best Xmas special at $5.00.

Last Chance--Toys Reduced

Third Floor—

T O-NIGHT, to-morrow and to-morrow night must be such busy ones in our pretty little Toyland that we shall be entirely cleared of toys. Naturally in order to be sure of accomplishing this we have had to cut the prices on scores of our mechanical and other toys to rock bottom—some, in fact, below the actual cost.

The kiddies can't have too many toys. They'll like to look back on these days in a few years, so take advantage of our 50 and 30 per cent. reductions.

$5.00 Net Waist $3.39

Second Floor—

THIS is the best Net Waist offer of the season. Do you catch strength of that statement?

Arriving in the nick of time for the Christmas buying has come to us a special purchase of fine Brussels Net Waists, with fine silk foundations, prettily embroidered fronts and trimmed with pretty soutache braid. The collars are tucked and the waist is made with the new Bishop sleeve. Absolutely the best Christmas gift Waist offer in Hamilton. Regular $5.00, for only $3.39.

of practical politics. The Poor-law must be broken up and pauperism abolished. Old Age Pensions must be extended and increased on their present non-contributory basis. Restrictions upon the franchise, including the sex bar, must be swept away.

ELECTION FINANCE.

More money will be spent on the general election of 1910 than on any of recent years. The party chests, particularly those of the Liberals, are reported to be filled to overflowing with the gifts of prominent supporters, and no promising young man who secures the approval of the Whips and the invitation of a constituency need hang back for want of money. While the expenses of candidates are strictly limited by statute, outside organizations, such as the Tariff Reform League and the Budget League and the like, can spend as much as they please. In the election of 1906 the actual expenses of the candidates amounted to £1,166,858. This time, with the campaigns of independent organizations, the election will cost quite a million and a half. The average cost per candidate will be between £300 and £450, much of which will be spent on printing, the hiring of halls and committees and clerical work. This does not include the gifts for charitable purposes, which for some time have been regarded as legitimate expenditure by would-be M. P.s. In many constituencies the candidates are expected to pay from £500 to £1,000 a year in subscriptions to hospitals, clubs, and societies in the neighborhood. This is a burden often unwillingly borne, and doubtless some way will be found by law before many years to lessen it.

LIBERAN AND LABOR.

Mr. C. F. G. Masterman, M. P., Under-Secretary for the Home Office: "I will support any candidate, whether Liberal, Labor or Nationalist, providing he is with the people against the Lords."

Mr. William Thorne, M. P., Labor and Socialist: "The Labor Party will do all they can to ensure the return of the Government."

The Social Democratic Party have sanctioned eight candidates; seven of these are fighting against both Liberal and Unionist. But the eighth, Mr. Harry Quelch, the editor of Justice, and most extreme of the advanced Socialists, is standing for Northampton, hitherto represented by two Liberals and for so long by Mr. Labouchere and Dr. Shipman. Only one Liberal has so far been selected, and it looks as if a compact were even to be made there between Liberalism and the extreme Socialist wing.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, M. P., chairman of the Labor Party, emphatically denies any compact with the Government.

FREE CHURCHES

Denounce the Veto of the Lords—Election Manifesto.

The following manifesto has been issued by the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches:

In view of the situation which has been created by the persistent action of the House of Lords in making impossible the reforms to which the National Free Church Council is committed by repeated pronouncements, and the peril in which the religious liberties of the people are placed, the executive of the National Council of the Evangelical Free Churches feels constrained to call the immediate and serious attention of Free Churches men to the momentous issues now at stake, and on which our national assemblies have already passed judgment.

In the year 1904 the National Evangelical Free Churches of England and Wales met at Newcastle and published the conclusions reached, after repeated and mature deliberations, on the subject of national education. Our demands were clearly expressed. They have been repeated at successive national assemblies. They have also been interpreted and applied as different aspects of the controversy have come to the front; but they have never been altered one jot or tittle in substance.

In 1905 the Council undertook to aid the return of representatives to Parliament who were definitely pledged to reverse the unjust legislation of 1902 and to replace it by those principles of national education which the common sense of the electorate subsequently endorsed. The result was that in January of the following year a House of Commons was elected, pledged, as to its large majority, to those principles of reform.

Three distinct efforts have been made in this Parliament to carry out the wishes expressed by the electors in reference to education. But we have been defeated. We have labored in vain and spent our strength for naught. Clericalism, working through the Anglican Church on the one hand, and through the Roman Catholic Church on the other, has thwarted every endeavor that has been made to secure justice.

Parliament is prorogued. The general election is about to take place. The electors must be reminded that the oppression of the conscience by the Education Act of 1902 not only continues, but increases year by year. The Anglican and Roman Catholics encroach more and more on the rates. Thousands of the children of Free Churches are compelled to attend Anglican or Roman Catholic schools maintained almost to the last penny out of taxes and rates paid by the community. In thousands of public schools no Nonconformist teachers can obtain positions as headmasters and headmistresses, except on condition of assenting to the sectarian faith of the managers. Many thousands of State teachers possess very inadequate equipment for their work. The people are deprived of the School Boards and the sectarian schools are clerically managed.

If, then, the education position is not to be made worse and existing evils multiplied, we must redouble the efforts of 1905-6 and prove by our devotion and self-sacrifice the intensity of our purpose.

Few legislative proposals have stirred our Free Church councils more profoundly than those contained in the bill for dealing with the licensing question. Our National Council "summoned all the members of our churches to give the bill their most active and earnest support," and according to our report for 1909, "Free Church councils everywhere did their utmost to voice public opinion in favor of the measure." But "in spite of the thorough and enthusiastic support of all classes of the community, the bill was thrown out by the House of Lords." The moral sense of the country was outraged by the sinister fact that an understanding had been arranged between the peers and the trade, demonstrating that the most beneficial influence on the politics of the country at the present time is that of the drink trade.

What remains for us is as obvious as it is imperative. Our course is clear. We have no choice but to go forward. We dare not surrender. Intemperance is the bane of our nation as well as its disgrace. It wastes its treasure and its manhood, and imperils the souls of men. We must return men to Parliament who will take every necessary step, and that at once, to relieve the nation of the fear and guilt of complicity with a trade that will certainly ruin the nation if it is not checked.

Other questions of great moral and religious importance hang on this election, and especially those connected with the housing of the people, the sufferings of the aged poor, unemployment, the prevalence of extreme misery and degradation, Welsh disestablishment, and the equality of all churches before the law. Not as party politicians, but as Christians, we are compelled by the teaching of our Lord to seek to remove the obstacles that stand in the way of the moral and religious welfare of the people.

At the National Assembly, held at Swansea this year, it was resolved that "the council realizes, and feels it incumbent on it to declare, that the veto of the House of Lords is the great obstacle in the way of a national system of education, since not only does its exercise cause the rejection of carefully drawn bills, but its existence (a) injuriously affects the drafting of educational measures, and (b) leads to their deterioration in committee."

For all these reasons we must, as free churches, whether pastors, teachers or workers, concentrate our whole power in discharge of our citizen duties in the present crisis. Whenever men of any political party are prepared on these moral questions to take the side of righteousness we can recognize them, but nothing must deter us from striving with all our might for the triumph of our ethical and religious programme. As a National Council, we have limited our votes to those measures on which our National Assemblies have spoken, and that we have consistently advocated since the founding of our organization, and from which, if we now draw back, we should deserve the reprobation passed on the recreant and half-hearted. Evan Jones, President. Thomas Law, Secretary.

The Christmas Spirit.

It's ho for the holly and laughter and kisses,

It's ho for the mistletoe bough in the hall!

Was ever a season so jolly as this? No, this is the jolliest one of them all.

The season of loving and giving and dancing,

The season of mirth and of hearts that are true,

The season of eyes most bewitching, entrancing.

It's ho, Merry Christmas! A welcome to you.

With loved ones about us to laugh at our follies,

The patter of feet in the hallways above,

A ring at the door. Now deserted are dollies,

All rush to greet callers and shower them with love.

What turbulent romping! Was ever such shouting

So dear to the heart and so sweet to the ear? Away with all fretting, repining and doubting,

Ye, ho, for the Christmas so brim full of cheer!

Away with you, Trouble! Our armor of gladness

You can't penetrate with your arrows of fear;

Away with you, Sorrow, away with you, Sadness,

Our walls are defended this morning by Cheer.

A fig for your frowning, Old Gloom, and your grousing,

No pessimist enters our castle to-day;

And should to our doorway a Kill-joy come slouching,

We've sentries of Cheer who will drive him away.

FEEDING PLANTS.

New Secret of Nature Found by a New Jersey Man.

There is a man in Clifton, N. J., who seems to have discovered the secret of perfect vegetation. On a little ten-acre farm he is raising flowers that might well be the envy of any florist, fruits and shrubs that would put the most successful nurseryman to the blush, and vegetables that are so much larger and sweeter than those that other farmers in that neighborhood can raise that it is difficult to find words with which to compare them. Moreover, though these fruits and flowers and vegetables may be examined ever so closely, no sign of insect or parasitic life can be found upon them. On other farms, peach trees are suffering from scales; spinach is blighted; bugs swarm over potato vines; corn is wormy, and cabbage is eaten by lice. None of these evidences of destruction exist on this farm. Instead, the twelve feet high corn stalks produce ears of corn of abnormal size and weight; tomatoes are grown that are almost big enough to fill a quart measure, and everything else bears similar evidence to freedom from those pests that ordinarily prove so destructive to vegetation.

The man who has produced these wonders—who claims to have discovered this secret of Nature—is John J. Ruegg. Although originally a silk manufacturer, he abandoned commercial life many years ago that he might devote all his time to the study of scientific agriculture. When a young man, in Switzerland, he had become possessed of the idea that the luxuriant vegetation existing in the vicinity of the volcanic mountains was due to the fact that the soil was particularly rich in mineral elements which it had absorbed from the lava flows, and it is upon this principle, and nothing else, that he is now working.

It was for that very reason that Mr. Ruegg selected this farm, however. He believed that worn-out and sour soil was simply soil from which the necessary mineral elements had been extracted by the successive crops that had been raised in it. To restore the qualities of fertility to such soil—if his theory was correct—it would only be necessary to restore the mineral elements that the vegetation had extracted, and this he proceeded to do.

His first step was to analyze the soil, to ascertain what mineral elements were lacking. Then, he supplied these in the form of powdered lava brought from one of the volcanoes and mixed with the manure which he used in moderate quantities. At present, the soil has had three seasons of such fertilization, and the magnificent crops that have been raised this year are the result. From "Making Things Grow With Lava," in January Technical World Magazine.
