The farming community cannot afford to abandon raising poultry, says the Jowa Register. Its profits and comorts are too great to yield the question without a struggle. The chicken cholers, like the hog cholers, seems to haffle the skill of the wisest. But the world cannot do without the delicious spring chicken; and the delicacies of which eggs form a very important part would be delicious no longer without this ingredient, Hence the necessity of the most scrupulous care of the broods and their places of roost, at well as searching investigations into the cause and cure of the diseases afflicting the chickens, The hen louse is one of the most annoying, if not the most dangerous agent to the poultry house. They must be expelled from nests and roosts. The chicken house must be kept as clean as circumstances will permit. The cholera is confined to no particular season or climate. But the winter quarters of the chickens should be renovated before the severe cold confines them indoors. All the manure and old straw should be removed to destroy as many insects as possible. If the boxes or nests are old, or in the least decayed, burn them with the straw. And if the house itself is old and only a den for vermin, if it catches on fire in burning straw and nests, and burns up, so much the better. Whitewash the hen house outside and inside with strong lime, adding a little carbolic acid to the slacked lime when cooled. Besides, give the roosts and floor a little kerosene oil. See that the lime in whitewashing gets into and fills up all the cracks and crevices. Give the fowls a box of lime, sand, sulphur and carbolic powder, to wallow in. All this will pay. Keep the chickens warm and comfortable, but not so tight as to make the air impure. Give them the advantage of the sun, and throw their food among straw so they will have to scratch for it, thus giving them exercise, else like many a human biped, they will become barren and unfruitful. Scratching for a living is as important to beast or bird as it is to those who should only eat bread by the sweat of their brow. But give the hens tender care, wholesome quarters, plenty of light and exercise and they will generally pay a generous interest. Some farmers are abandoning this branch of husbandry, but it is wrong. Bring more care and wise supervision to that department of the farm and more general success will be the result. Chickens are never healthy, unless they have plenty of sand and gravel. Their water given them should be in an iron vessel, and if a handful of rusty nails be kept in their water the better. But otherwise the water must be pure and renewed every day.

Mighty Spans.

To give an idea of the relative distances, suppose a voyager through the celestial spaces could travel from the sun to the outmost planet of our system in twenty-four hours, so enormous would be his velocity that it would carry him across the Atlantic ocean, from New York to Liverpool, in less than a tenth of a second of the clock. Starting from the sun with this velocity, he would cross the orbits of the inner planets in rapid succession, and the outer ones more slowly, until, at the end of a single day, he reaches the confines of our system, crossing the orbit of Neptune. But though he passed eight planets the first star, and would then have to journey as shed in the distance in the course of

Throwing the Shoe.

One of the best-known customs connected with shoes is that of throwing them after a wedding party on their way from church or elsewhere. It is, say the authors of "Lancashire Folklore," a relic of Anglo-Saxon or Danish vessel before putting in water, and they usages, along with many other wedding usages of ancient origin. How to remedy those prolific causes of disease, an impoverished circulation and an impaired digestion, was a problem the solution of which had often baffled medical skill, but which was solved over a quarter of a century ago by the introduction of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters to public and professional notice. Since that time, which may well be said to have initiated a new epoch in the history of medicine, the remedy and preventive referred to has obtained a foothold in the confidence of the American people that each succeeding year has only served to strengthen. It is recognized throughout the Union as a tonic of the first order, a remedy for and sure means of preventing fever and ague, and disorders of the stomach and bowels; as a reliable means of reforming a disordered state of the liver, and of counteracting a tendency to rheumatism, gout, urinary and uterine disorders.
