take come round to me at once. Do not lose a moment. It is a matter of the most urgent consequence to yourself.

Wondering what this might mean, Harry marched off in front of the messenger, and in three minutes from his receipt of the letter found himself in Captain Heaton's presence. The morning plume of the worthy captain was gay and brilliant. He was in a gorgeously flowered and embroidered dressing-gown, and wore Turkey slippers and a scotch cap. He had begun his day's work early, and was already engaged over a brandy and soda and a cigar. In the evening, all things considered, Captain Heaton was a young-looking man for his years, but in the raffish traits he peeped out in the bulbous underlid of his eyes, creased into thick folds, and in the strongly accentuated crown of his head, he offered his visitor a similar refreshment to that he was himself partaking, and his offer being declined, he sat in apparently uneasy silence for a moment, tugging at his moustache. To his visitor's mind he bore the air of a man who had an urgent and important mission to make, and it was unwilling to make it.

"Do you know, my dear boy," said Heaton, suddenly, as if he had made up his mind to have the unpleasant business over; "do you know, my dear boy, that you have got yourself into a dickens of a mess?"

"Upon my word, I don't," returned Harry. "Do you?"

"I shall be very glad if I don't," said the captain. "You don't mean to tell me that you don't know what you have done?"

"Now," said young Wynne, lifting his eyes and looking squarely at the captain's face, "to tell you the truth, Heaton, I had thought of that sort of thing yesterday to satisfy me for the rest of my life. If I have done anything, he good enough to tell me what it is at once. If it concerns you in any way I will give you whatever explanation you may have a right to."

"If he had done anything," repeated the captain, as if appealing to some invisible third person who knew all about it and was bound to share his own friendly Harry kept a resolute good temper.

"I have done many things in my life," he said. "All sorts of things—good, bad, and indifferent. What is the one thing you want to speak about?"

"Well, upon my word," said Heaton, "you take it coolly."

"I try to," the young man answered. "Captain Heaton showed the theme clean away with both hands, and looked mournfully resigned."

"You—don't know it? You—you don't know it?" he said, a moment later, knitting his eyebrows in inquiring wonderment, and leaning across the table towards his companion.

"I found it all, man," cried the badgered youth, "I have told you already that I don't know. Do you know? Upon my word, I think the whole world's going mad together."

"Oh," said the captain, with an air of injured friendship, "if you take that tone, Wynne, it's no affair of mine."

"Where's the affair?" Harry asked.

"Well," said Heaton, "I should say it was yours, if it's anybody's, but if you choose not to know anything about it, and to resent a friendly intervention, you may go to the mischief your own way, by Jove, and leave an end of it."

"Will you tell me," asked Harry, rising. "What is it you want to talk about?"

"Oh, well, if you insist on knowing nothing about it," returned the captain, "I'll tell you. It's a matter of your own life. Did you ever meet one Butterfield, a jeweler, on Conduit street?"

"Did you say Harry, 'what about him?'"

What people often denigrate as a sea of trouble is frequently a notion of dyspeptic ideas.

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia, Constipation, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief. I then bought a bottle of Holloway's Kidney and Bladder Cure, and after using it for a few days, I found it was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

The more you take your advice never give you a chance to forget that it was your advice if it turns out to be bad for them.

Three Years Free

The Coming School of Medicine.

The Histogenetic System.

THIS SYSTEM IS COMPLETE, having different medicines for all the different diseases. The theory is entirely different from any other system. The medicines are perfectly pure, containing nothing of a poisonous nature whatever, and are quite tasteless. For three years these medicines have been given away free and thoroughly tested in the most hospitable manner. The results have exceeded the most sanguine expectations. Histogenetic Medicines have cured and are curing today thousands of cases in the world. In ACUTE cases the medicines act like magic. Chronic troubles require a longer time, generally from one to three months, according to the nature of the complaint. In FEMALE IRRITATIONS, LAMENESS, WOMEN'S TROUBLES, etc., the medicines have been especially successful. Private EXAMINATIONS of the troubles are almost, if not quite, absolutely unnecessary. All or send for one of our books explaining the system. They should be in every house in the land.

RHEUMATISM and SCIATICA

I am happy to acknowledge, and now testify to the efficacy of your medicines in curing Rheumatism. I have suffered with this painful disease in my shoulders, knees and hips for twenty-five years, also with sciatica for some time. I decided to try Histogenetic Medicines as a last resort, as nothing ever seemed to give me any permanent relief. The first week's medicine gave me relief, and in two weeks the sciatica disappeared and has not returned. I took the medicines for six weeks, and am cured of the rheumatism. I feel better in every way. I am sixty years of age, and feel quite smart and active. I can cheerfully recommend these medicines to the public, and will be glad to tell any sufferer about my case. It is now nearly two months since I ceased taking the medicines, and the effects are permanent.
