dian, Dr. J. D. Dunlop, of Alpena, Mich.

This system of treatment is no "gold cure," nor has it any analogy to alleged "cures" so widely advertised.

It is a distinct and original discovery of great scientific value.

Over 300 drunkards have been treated successfully at Alpena; and at other places in the United States and at Woodstock scores of now happy homes attest its efficacy. There are no injurious effects from the Dunlop treatment. It is perfectly safe and certain in its results. It removes all diseased conditions resulting from the use of liquor and opiates, and leaves the patient with absolutely no desire for them.

An Interesting Chat With th Great Violinist.

His Broad Ideas of Art-All Natu Full of Beauty for the True Artist

-- His Coming Visit to London. [Montreal Herald.]

[Montreal Herald.]
The life of a mewspaper reporter is a all couleur de rose by any means. The he lies on is not all rose leaves. I thorns lie thick. But there are compensionally a superporter and the least of the the lies on 18 to thorns lie thick. But there are continued to the tions. By no means the least of them the opportunity—not a frequent one, the way—of talking to such men Edouard Remenyi. The Heraldreporters had the privilege of calling on had the privilege of calling on the continued the privilege of the privi had the privilege of call Remenyi yesterday aiternoon ments in the Windsor Hotel, Educard (seemeny). The Herald reporter who had the privilege of calling on Mr. Remenyi yesterday afternoon at his apartments in the Windsor Hotel, congratulated himself on having dropped into a good thing. Mon of Mr. Remenyi's caliber are rare. To say that he is an artist is to tell but half the truth. With some men the term "artisit" tells only of what they can do; it is their profession to which we allude. But with such men as Remenyi the title expresses something higher and nobler; it tells of what he is; it describes his predominant characteristic.

When, about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, his interviewer entered Remenyi's apartment, the musician was talking to a gentleman well-known in musical circles of a Greuse which he had secured, and of which he spoke in most enthusiastic terms. He was inquiring if Sir Donald Smith, of whom he had heard as a generous patron of art, was in town. On learning that Sir Donald was away in England he seemed much disappointed, as he wanted to see the worthy knight's collection of pictures and show him the Greuse.

"I see, Mr. Remenyi, that you are not only a musician but an enthusiast in every form of art," remarked the man of newspaners tentatively.

"Ah, my dear sir," was the musician, he will appreciate not only the work of his brother musician, how will appreciate not only the work of his brother musician, how will appreciate not only the work of his brother musician, but also that of the painter, the designer, the sculptor, and every other art worker. Not only this, but all nature will be full of beauty for him. Such appreciation of beauty other than that of music, will be an educator for him; his soul will be filled with grander, purer thought, which he will more and more perfectly give voice to in his music."

"Do you, then, believe in the so-called descriptive music? De you not think it exaggeration to say of this piece of music than that of music, will be an educator for him; his soul will be filled with grander, purer thought, which he will more and more perfectl spake of many things in the dumb rticulate, yet soul-stirring language of Music cannot say 'This is the mooneh this the lover waiting; this the maiden ing to meet him; this the warmembrace ing to meet him; this the warm embrace; but it can filter down into your soul—if it so be that you have one—and stir up many thoughts to which language cannot give utterance for want of words."

"Well, Mr. Remenyi," said the interviewer, rising, "I hope you like the hall."

"Ah, yes; the hall is magnificent. Wo have been rehearsing in it all day, and found the acoustics absolutely perfect. Well, good evening, my dear sir. Call again and see me to-morrow."

No lover of music should miss the opp runnity of hearing Remenyi on Wednesday next at the Grand Opera House. His playing is indescribable. In Montreal he has a lot appear ten times before the audience could be satisfied. The plan opens at box office on Monday, Nov. 7. Balcony seats only 50 cents.

Rigors of Exposure. Rigors of Exposure.

Those most exposed to the rigor of a Canadian winter suffer most with what cannot be well avoided, but can be certainly and promptly cured by St. Jacobs Oil, and that is frost-bites. If neglected, they sometimes cause the loss of a limb, but they can be easily cured, as stated.
