The Negro Question At The Episcopal Convention

RICHMOND, Va., October 18.—The suffragan bishops' bill was passed by the house of bishops of the Episcopal convention last night. This is the same bill that was passed by the house of deputies of the general convention yesterday, so that it is a settlement of the negro question so far as the Episcopal church is concerned. The suffragan bishops will only be elected in those dioceses which demand it, and will have a seat in the house of bishops without a vote. They may be either white or negro bishops, and may work with or among the negro or among the white element. It is understood, however, that many of the dioceses will ask for negro and suffragan bishops to work among the negro race, these bishops being under the immediate control of the white bishops of the diocese in which they work. It is thought the negro question will not disturb the present convention.

J. BRANT WALKER SURPRISES WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, October 18.—J. Brant Walker, of Wall street and Fifth avenue, whose recent operations on the stock exchanges had convinced his friends that he was on the shortest and most direct route to the poorhouse, surprised them all yesterday by announcing that he was through with stocks for good and all, having made $3,000,000 out of them within six months. Walker declares he has wrung the money from a paltry market by having sense enough to sell "high-brow" securities the moment there was indications of a decline.

Early last week people who were sure they knew all about him wagged their heads and predicted that Walker would never be able to stand the pressure. No man living, they declared, could sell as furiously as Walker sold when stocks were high and cover his contracts.

Walker, however, was chucking quietly in his sleeve, and still more quietly getting out of the market day by day. He declared yesterday that for the past month he has been systematically banking his winnings and has only a few thousand shares of stock remaining to his name.

NEW YORK
Walker is a son of Edw. Walker, general counsel of the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, and has only been in New York a few years. When he first came here he went into partnership with his brother, E. C. Walker, head of the stock exchange house of Walker and Company. Recently he sold out and began to operate on his own account. He is the only customer of his own office at No. 500 Fifth avenue, and it takes a dozen clerks to keep track of his trading.

"No," he said yesterday, "I didn't keep an underground wire to my governor in Chicago. I just used my wits. I never could see that a stock market could lead a bond market. All the time that Rockefeller, Harriman and the rest of the big people were declaring dividends and still more dividends, the bond market kept going down. Do you suppose if there had been general faith in the dividend business keeping up that bond prices would have stayed firm? If all the operating had been based on sound realities, neither President Roosevelt nor anyone else could have broken the market with a few speeches. That was the way things seemed to me, and I backed my judgment to the limit."

HOW HE MADE IT
"To get down to my own recent profits, I sold Union at 43, Steel at 39, Smelters at 111, and St. Paul at 132. All told, I went home 1,000,000 shares in the New York market and 80,000 shares in London. I got out of Union at 18 1/2, Steel at 23 1/4 and Smelter at 75. A profit in other words of 17 points on Steel, 25 on Union and 36 on Smelter—$3,000,000 or so at conservative estimating."

Walker believes that some railroad stocks make good investments and others only good gambling. Don't invest your money, he says, in a road that pays too big dividends, because there must be something wrong about that road. A road that is solid on its legs doesn't have to coax moths to the flame with inflated dividends. Walker is about forty, magnetic in manner and lives quietly in bachelor apartments at No. 22 West Thirtieth street. Asked what he was going to do with his new millions, he replied with a twinkle in his eye that he guessed he would go into some "nice conservative business in a small way."

Radyard Kipling on Canadian Immigration.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling is reported to have received an ovation at the luncheon of the Canadian club in Victoria, B.C. After a charmingly-worded reference to the work of the men who managed to "make Victoria a magnificent city and at the same time to keep intact the magnificent treasure-house of its natural beauty," Mr. Kipling dwelt on immigration, and promised that on his return he would embody his views on Canada in some form. He contrasted the happy condition of the Canadian people with those of India. He then went on to point out the difference between Oriental and continental European immigration and settlers of British origin.

ROOM TO DEVELOP IN THE DOMINION

In the one case the immigrants regarded law as a monster. They were born in fear and reared in the panic necessary to the race. It is not necessary, continued Mr. Kipling, to evolve an elaborate scheme of education to instruct the immigrant from Great Britain how to talk the English language or to teach his children the rudiments of citizenship. He knows that he may have to learn much and to unlearn much, but at last he will have the same powers and possibilities as yourselves and follow the same ideas even as your fathers did along lines that you know well. He seeks only room to develop his powers and his capabilities, and this room, I conceive is offered in your vast Dominion.

TIME FOR CHOICE IS ON US NOW

"It is possible that in your strength you may think that this is not an urgent question, but the time is coming when you will have to choose between the desired reinforcement of your own stock and blood and the strangers, whose speech you do not understand, and from whose instincts and traditions you are separated by thousands of years—that is your choice. For myself I think the time for making that choice is on you now."

WHERE WAS EARTHQUAKE?

Official Statements Given Out at Washington Regarding Seismograph Observations of Past Two Days.

WASHINGTON, October 18.—Official statements regarding the violent earthquake recorded Wednesday and followed by a disturbance of less magnitude yesterday indicate that the earthquake occurred at some point between 5,000 and 5,000 miles away, varying according to two estimates. The only direction indicated is that the motion was either east or west. Yesterday's shock, which kept the weather bureau seismograph moving for three-quarters of an hour, may have been an after shock of Wednesday's disturbance. The occurrence has created widespread interest among scientists. It is possible that congress will be asked at its next session to authorize the extension of seismographic observations so that records may be made by the government at various points.
