

BROTHER TOLD BROTHER

One Suffered for Fifteen Years, the Other for Thirteen.

The convincing powers of a testimonial were never more clearly shown than in the case of Mr. Hugh Brown, a brother, Lemuel Brown, of Avondale, N.B., read in the paper about Hon. John Costigan being cured by "Fruit-a-lives." Knowing the Senator would only endorse a medicine which had cured him, Mr. Lemuel Brown tried "Fruit-a-lives." They cured him of Chronic Indigestion and Constipation, so he urged his brother to try them.

Hartland, N.E., Oct. 28th, 1907.

Three doctors told me that I had Liver Disease and serious Stomach Trouble. My stomach was very weak. I took their medicines for thirteen years and grew worse. My brother (who was cured of terrible indigestion by "Fruit-a-lives" after suffering for 15 years), recommended me to try these wonderful tablets. I bought half a dozen boxes and have just finished the sixth. I eat all kinds of hearty foods without distress and am greatly improved in every way. "Fruit-a-lives" also cured the Chronic Constipation which was so distressing in my case.

MEXICAN ISLAND DISAPPEARS

Mexico City, August 25.—A despatch from Acapulco says that the government warship General Guerrero has left there to investigate the fate of Clipperton Island, which is reported to have partly disappeared as a result of the recent earthquake shocks. The island is claimed by both France and Mexico, and the question of possession is in process of arbitration between the two governments. The island was inhabited by the governor, Ramon Arnaud, and family, a company of soldiers, with the officers and employees of a guano shipping company. The island is surrounded with reefs, and it can only be approached in fair weather. Lighters. The people on the island possess no means of communication other than the occasional visit of the ships which convey the guano produced on the island. The island is, in fact, the peak of an extinct volcano, and in the centre of the island is a deep basin.

COST FARMER $500. WORKING ON SUNDAY.

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 17.—Chas. Gibbon, of Lynden village, was fined $5 at Dundas, on Monday for working on his land on Sunday. Mr. Gibbon is a seventh day adventist and claimed that his conscience did not allow him to work on Saturday, and that the Bible commanded that man should labor six days a week.

FREIGHT WRECKED NEAR NEW GLASGOW

Special to the Morning Chronicle

New Glasgow, Aug. 24.—Eight miles east of New Glasgow a special freight train running from Stellarton to Mulgrave went into the ditch, causing heavy damage to the cars and track. The train was in charge of conductor McKay and Driver J. Shaw on the engine. The tender and fourteen cars ran off and several went down a steep bank to the water's edge. Some of the cars containing the brick and flooring were badly broken up. The auxiliary train was hurried to the scene from Stellarton and by noon had a new track laid, and No. 19 express passed safely by. The passengers and mails on the morning train were transferred at the wreck. No one was hurt in the mishap, and no cause had yet been ascertained to account for the accident.

New Lettlers Here to Seek Homes

"In all 54 settlers for Nova Scotia arrived on the steamer Mongolian," said A. S. Barnstead, Secretary of Industries and Immigration, to a reporter of The Morning Chronicle. When seen, Mr. Barnstead was very busy at his office at Deep Water, making arrangements for the new Nova Scotians.

"Most of these people," said Mr. Barnstead, "are here with the intention of taking up farming, so have come to look over the country with the idea of bringing out their families later, some to engage in other occupations, and there are also thirteen girls who will work as domestics or some similar occupation."

Those who intend to take up farming are well supplied with capital and most of them intend to hire out for a time in order to become acquainted with the methods and the country, before purchasing a farm of their own. One man, with his son, is here for a few weeks to look around and to see the country first hand. The son will likely take up engineering next year and will likely be a student at the Technical College. An other son will follow farming and will take a course at the Agriculture College. Another man has with him his wife and three children, two boys and a girl. The father will purchase a farm and the boys, who both have had experience, will hire out to gain experience in Nova Scotia farming.

There are also four young men, all of whom have had experience on farms in the Old Country, have come here with the intention of locating. They will hire out for a time before buying farms of their own. Another young man has had six years experience in South Africa, he is well supplied with cash, but will work on a farm for a time before purchasing one of his own.

A Scotchman, who has retired from active work, with his wife and two children, a son and a daughter, are here with the intention of locating and making for himself a new home in Nova Scotia. There is also a young man in the party, though inexperienced in farming is willing to adapt himself to the work. He is a fine, sturdy chap, one of the kind who is bound to get along. A son of a retired Scotch business man came on the steamer with the intention of locating here and his parents will join him later.

Two married women, one of them with three children, came to join their husbands, who are now settled on farms in the Valley, having come here a couple of years ago and made good.

There is more catarrh in this part of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the past few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case if it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

DESTROYING MAPLES

Some of the maple trees on Waverley street are dying and several of the property owners called one of the Central Experimental farm experts to ascertain the cause. It was found that the tree was full of the larvae of the flat-headed borer. These worms eat into the wood of the trees and by destroying the vessels which carry the sap from the roots upward they kill the tree. The only remedy known is to dig out the borers with a knife, which is impossible where they are so numerous.—Ottawa Citizen.

FOUR LOSE LIVES; AUTO PLUNGES THROUGH TRESTLE

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 20.—Three young women and one man, driver of an automobile, met death, and two young women narrowly escaped herniate last night when a touring car crashed through the railing of the long trestle over the tide flats. The party were from Vancouver, except the driver of the car, who was a Seattle man. The tide was at flood and the victims were hurled into several feet of water.

Miss Mary Paul, a sister of one of the dead, and Miss Kate Hiscock were rescued by a boatman, who found them clinging to the wrecked auto. All the young women are said to belong to prominent families in Vancouver.

NEAR DEATH'S DOOR

Mi-na cures dyspepsia. If any of the readers of Monitor-Sentinel are suffering from stomach trouble of any kind S. N. Wearo will sell you a box of Mi-na for 50 cents with an absolute guarantee of relief or money back.

Neil Murray, of Huron Road, Godrich, Ont., says: "I suffered with indigestion for over four years and had been eleven over as incurable by many doctors. I had become a nervous wreck through loss of sleep, and whatever I eat did not remain on my stomach for over two hours. I would suffer from vomiting spells that would almost kill me, prespiras large as beads would break out all over my body and leave me in so weakened a condition that I would be unable to stand, not a rest in over six months and was so weakened and run down that my heart was greatly weakened, and would flutter and a sharp pain would come through me and cut off my breath. I was reduced in weight from 150 to less than 110 pounds. Doctors would give different causes for my trouble, yet none of them gave me the slightest relief. I commenced treatment with Mi-na and when one-half of the first box was used I could eat my meals without suffering the dreadful vomiting spells I used about ten boxes in all, and I am entirely cured. My stomach is as strong as ever and there is not the slightest trouble with digestion. I have gained about forty pounds in weight, and strong and healthy and like a new man. I will always speak highly of Mi-na, as it cured and I believe kept me from sure death when all else had failed."

SHORT HAIR FOR GIRLS

London, Aug. 19.—A considerable stir has been made among parents by a circular issued to them by Dr. Outler, medical officer to Willesden Education Committee, in which he urges them to send their girls back to school after the summer vacation with their hair cut short. The medical officer states:

"There is absolutely no need for girls to wear their hair long, and if the cleanly parents will set the example of having their girls' hair cut short while at school much more hygienic conditions will be established in our public schools. On the eve of the holidays I venture to make this appeal to parents to send all children to school with short hair."

DESPONDENT LICENSE INSPECTOR—SUICIDE

Despondent over continued and bitter criticism of his work as license inspector by a local paper, the temperance people and the liquor dealers, L. C. Musgrave, of North Sydney, on the 12th attempted to end his life by shooting himself in the head.

The act was committed in his home after his family had retired, but the report of the shot brought Mrs. Musgrave almost instantly to the side of her husband, whom she found standing in the kitchen with the smoking revolver in his hand.

The bullet entered his forehead a little above the eye, and two doctors who were summoned, failed to extract it.

Mr. Musgrave is still alive, but it is thought he cannot recover.

We have license inspectors in Truro of a very different stamp. Oftentimes their actions are misconstrued and misinterpreted, but they do not lose heart and get discouraged. They only brace up the more for the campaign that has been assigned them a gainst the illicit sale of demoralizing drink, gird on their armor and rush to the field; and, in proportion to the extent of their raids on whiskey dens do they increase in respect and support of the great majority of the best citizens of our town.—Truro News.

A Weird Forest in the Ghat Described by Writer.

Describing a scene in the Ghat, a writer in The Times of India says: Five miles south of Vaishakhare is the village of Sonavle. From the main street of Sonavle, if the eye be turned to the south, right upon the face of the precipice, and about one-third of the way up, will be seen a row of caves, with square cut mouths looking for all the world like the stopping holes in some titanic instrument. Thither let us wend. At first the path leads through rice lands and pastures. But at last cultivation ends, and we are on the edge of one of the wildest forests that the mind can conceive. All along the foot of this seven-league precipice runs a belt of wood. From a little way off a strange sound is heard, like a wild continuous sigh. One can almost imagine that he is on the floor of the primal sea, and that the sigh is the howling of the breakers on the cliff. But as he enters the wood the cause becomes apparent.

In this mysterious wood there is no peace. On the sunlit plains which we have just quitted the air is cool and still. But in this wood, although shadowed from the sun by the precipice, a close, hot, stifling wind is always blowing, or, rather, whirling, up and down the deep carved hollows, and ragged ridges little whirlwinds suck the fallen leaves. They never weather these leaves. In the West we used to think of a fallen leaf as something small, fallen from something large. But in the East, where everything is upside down, a fallen leaf is a teak leaf, two feet long, fallen from a puny stunted stem. Beyond the weather the sheet of water running off the face of the cliff above forms a natural veil, shutting off the caves from the outer world. On each side are rows of cells, and the central cave is a temple, with a shrine, and carved pillars. The carving has been partially torn from the pillars, leaving the rough core. Who has done this thing? Not the Mussulmans. Oh! a tree, you suggest? No. You forget; trees do not grow in caves. Who then? Devout Hindus. Time and again has some cultivator come hither whose hair perhaps has been too long expected in vain. Hacking off a figure from the pillar, and toiling down the slope again, he returns to his hut. Covering the figure with red lead, he stands it in a corner. After some days the hair is boring, and the figure becomes the household god, the deity of these pillars. And it is in the actions of the houses of "Sonavle" appear in the world when desired.

The cells on each side of the main cave once held hermits. They drank the water that gathered in these cisterns, and ate the grain that was brought to them by the temple visitors. When they had no grain they fasted, or smoked themselves into insensibility. All the lifelong day they sat and looked out, as we are looking, on to the stretches of rice fields far below, blotted from view here and there this February morning by smoke from the red fires; and listened, to the dolorous churning of the wind in the wood below. Thus they sat on, without bodily comforts, and without passions, meditating themselves into oneness with the all-pervading Brahma. The minister went, and the merchants went, and still they meditated on. But with the departure of the worldly ones the visitors to the cliff temple became less frequent. There was no grain to eat. One by one they rose and went to another place. They are gone, and the carving on the pillar is going. Only the all-pervading Brahma remains and the dolorous churning of the wind in the wood, and the dripping veil of monsoon water from the cliff.
