WOLFE AT QUEBEC

By W. P. M. KENNEDY, M. A., F. R. Hist. S. (Eng.)

Professor of Modern History, University of St. Francis Xavier.

Did Wolfe actually recite Gray's "Elegy"? Did he actually adopt the plan suggested by his brigadiers? These and other interesting points in Canadian history are answered and discussed in this scholarly article, which will appear in the September Number.

PUSHING BACK THE FRONTIER

By J. GORDON SMITH

This is a fascinating article dealing with the amazing development that is going on in Northern and Central British Columbia. The text is illustrated by excellent photographs.

THE ROMANCE OF THE FUR TRADE

By DR. GEORGE BRYCE

The series of articles on Lord Strathcona by Professor Bryce include this vivid account of the Western fur trade during the life-time of one of the Great Company's greatest traders. It will be in the September issue.

ANDERSON THE FUGITIVE SLAVE

By FRANK YEIGH

The series on "Famous Canadian Trials" offers none more dramatic than that of this slave, whose arrest in Canada on a charge of murder almost led to an international crisis.

Also an unconventional appreciation of General Sam. Hughes, by Britton B. Cooke, who finds this much-discussed Minister of Militia a failure in some things but a genius in military organization.
