The Komagata Maru gang will not permit the five marooned Hindus to get back on the vessel. The Japanese captain took up the Japanese consul on a rope ladder today, and the conful gave an ultimatum to two o'clock. It is proposed to play a steam jet on the Hindus from a neighboring vessel if they resist efforts to place the five back on the boat.

HINDUS FRUSTRATE CONSUL'S SCHEME

Refuse to Allow "Traitors" to Board Their Ship

Canadian Press Despatch.

VANCOUVER July 6.—Despite the ultimatum delivered by the Jananese consul, Horl, to the Hindus on the Komagata Maru, this morning, they refused to permit the five "traitors" whom they marooned last week, to get back on the vessel. The efforts of the consul were directed toward getting the ship back into the control of Capt. Yamamoto. It was threatened at one stage of the conference on ed at one stage of the conference on the boat that a vessel would be moor-ed alongside the Maru and a jet of hot steam yould be played on the Hindus to prevent them from interfering with the Japanese sailors, so that the latter could let the gangplank down. Two or three times today the Hindus on the vessel created considerable noise, one time in particular, when the uniformed boy scouts went by on the Princess Charlotte, on their way to Victoria. The Hindus evidently thought the scouts a troop sent out to take the Maru. The Earl of Meath (Irish Unionist) supported Lord Lansdowne's proposal that they should make the best of this bill, always looking at it from the point of view that it did not settle the Irish question. The only thing which would settle the guestion was the federal system of home rule. The fact that there were nearly 300,000 armed men in Ireland at the present moment had entirely altered the complexion of affairs. Both Home Rulers and Unionists must therefore think the thing out afresh. His advice as an Irishman who knew his fellow-countrymen, was to give this amending bill its second reading. tensely interesting, and Miss Proctor carried her part well. The school scene in Act 3 marked the climax of the humorous touches which were evident in each of the others. Robert Homans, as Jack Rance, showed up the qualities of the villain, while the simplicity and affection of the scholars was the final note at the end of the act.

The scenery effects were delightfully appropriate for the setting of the play in the early days of the western frontier. Alice Donovan, as Wookle the Fox, Billy's squaw, lent a realistic touch to the performance which was appreciated by the audience, in addition to the emotional work of Miss Proctor.

As previously announced, Miss Proctor and Miss Wheatley will alternate in playing "The Girl." Miss Wheatley was the successor of Blanche Bates in this role under David Belasco's management. Tonight Miss Wheatley will assume the part,

Canada's Welfare Rests Upon the Western Crop

The condition of the crops in the Canadian West is a barometer that indicates the kind of weather big and little business in this country is going to have next fall and winter.

If there's to be plenty of work and money in Toronto, it will to an extent depend on how hard the harvesters must labor to gather in the grain.

The next ten weeks in the West are fraught with great interest to everyone whose personal prosperity is synchronal with Canada's prosperity. You want the straight facts of the condition of the crops. You want to know where you are at. Then read the weekly crop reports in The Sunday World. They give the straight facts.
