European and American Cities Honor Favorite Actor, and Why Not Toronto?

William H. Crane, who is appearing at the Princess Theatre this week in Father and the Boys," a delightful comedy, is an old Toronto boy, and will, on Saturday night, celebrate the eth anniversary of his stage career as it is just a half century ago since veteran actor first stepped before

There are many reasons why the he footlights. blee of Mr. Cran's stage life should fittingly celebrated, the first and best being that he is a product of Toonto, and has borne a spotless reputhruout his long career. Let it not be said in Mr. Crane's case that "a prophet is not without honor ex-ept in his own country." He is reognized as the legitimate successor of Joseph Jefferson, and as such takes his place as the dean of actors on this side of the Atlantic. Had Mr. Crane been born in England and lived in that country, there is no doubt that he would, like Sir Henry Irving and Sir Charles Wyndhave received a knighthood ere But he is not an Englishman, of English parentage. He is a Catadian, and as such Canadians

Many of his old-time friends have suggested to Manager Sheppard that his many admirers attend the Princess Theatre Saturday night, when it will be arranged for Mr. Crane to greet them and deliver short speeches between the acts touching on old-time reminiscences in Toronto, and after performance they will have a chance to shake hands with the great

The Port Arthur Daily News of Monday contains an interesting reference to a former Torontonian and ex-president of the Templars, saying:

That James Armstrong, formerly whief of the Port Arthur Fire Department, was forced to leave by a clique because he would not drink, was a statement made by Rev. J. W. Church-lil at Trinity Methodist hurch last evening. He said: "One of the best men Port Arthur ever had was forced to leave by a clique. James Armstrong was a staunch man. He would not drink and he had to get out. He has gone to Kingston and is doing well. Some people will say that I should not talk this way, but these things are on my heart and I am a citizen of Port Arthur and jealous of her character

Mr. Andrew McConnell has closed another successful series of oral lectures and private conferences with his students. The free lectures convinced many who were enrolled in the group of permanent students, now numbering hundreds in Toronto.

course lectures were largely attended by the old students, who were able to corroborate the instructions of the teacher by testimony of wonderful results from instructions received at previous courses. It is not likely that these oral courses will be continued. but that all instruction will hereafter be given by correspondence.

This evening the McConnell Health Club of Toronto, established early inand which has been a means of training new students ever since, will meet in the parlors, Y.W.C.Guild Hall, with the members of the new class, to plan instruction and training lectures on a larger scale. Membership in this club is open to all old and new students, and members of their households who have a right to the treatment, and to any who will enroll themselves be fore the club meets.
