Logan & Bryan say: One of our representatives who made an investigation trip early in the season thru Oklahoma and Kansas for us confirming green bug damage, wires us this morning: Don't believe because no damage by bugs apparent right now that it won't show up in northwest. On certain fields we watched down here it took from eight to ten days for damage to show up. This is just the weather for them to increase rapidly, too.

crease rapidly, too. NEW YORK, June 27.—A revised estimate of the winter wheat crop by a Minneapolis crop expert sent the price of wheat soaring upward on the produce exchange this afternoon, and within an hour an advance of 4½c a bushel was recorded. September options touched $1.06. The sharp upward movement was accompanied by a turbulent scene on accompanied by a turbulent scene on the floor, as the shorts hurried to cover prices advanced rapidly, nearly 5c per bushel. A report by Expert Jones of the Commercial West saying Oklahoma, Texas and Kansas would not together raise 50,000,000 bushels of wheat, and that Nebraska, promise had been overestimated, also that spring wheat had deteriorated from cold, dry weather, materially helped to bring about the advance. The market held a large part of its recovery and closed strong, with probability of another advance to-more anition.
