

Young Mens' Association.

The task of drawing up and presenting to you on behalf of the Committee the Annual Report of this Association in the second year of its revival in this church, has been a source of much pleasure to me as your Secretary. Never has the society from its earliest days known such a successful year in every element that makes a strong society.

The number of ordinary meetings held last winter was ten, of which the first was on the 1st November and the last on the 4th April.

The attendance has been much larger than last year, the average attendance being twenty-three, which is exceedingly good. The highest number present on any one evening being thirty-two, the lowest twelve. A new plan was introduced by the Committee for securing a large attendance and inducing the young men to come to the meetings, namely, having printed on slips of paper the attractive programme that was always prepared, and handing them to the young men on the Sunday evening before the meeting, as they entered the Church. This not only informed those receiving them what they were to expect, but kept them in remembrance of the meetings and showed them that there was a Society which was doing all in its power to unite the young men of the congregation together.

Our attendance has not been confined to the young men of the Church alone, for quite a number of young men connected with other churches have attended, and the
