Western U Squad Have Gruelling Week Ahead Before Meeting Varsity

Had Signal Practice in Armories Last Night, But Take To Field This Afternoon-Dyer Back and Couple of New Men Turn Up.

The Western U. squad got out on the rest cleats. A dry field is hoped for by the Western crew, as they demonstrated in Toronto that they could not only hold Varsity, but with Traynor's punthour's stiff signal practice. The old numbers have been switched around some, and the players have all proceeded to lose their code books.

A couple of new men were out last night and will be given a thorough workout at the first of the grid practices to be staged at 4:15 this afternoon at Tecumseh Park. Thirty men will be out at the first bark this afternoon, and probably some more on top.

the champion. Harry Schuster, a Cincinnatian recently returned, apparently thinks that Mr. Sanchez would do well to stay right down in the canal zone.

"The Spaniard is a big fellow," says Schuster, "weighing, I should judge, about 220 pounds, but he does not know the game well enough to beat a man like Dempsey. He is strong too and hits well, but the odds would be 5 to let usually the same well on the champion."

It would be far better to let Dempsey remain idle than to match him with boxers with no reputation, like Sanchez. Outside of Georges Carpentier, who has a possible chance to win the championship, there is not a man in Dempsey's class at the present time who would give the title-holder a hard fight,

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Jack Dempsey and his rival for the world's heavyweight championship, Georges Carpentier, have had their first battle. It wasn't in a ring, and they didn't wear gloves. They went at it barefisted in a field with clubs.

Neither one is a star golf player, but their appearance on the links of a country club yesterday drew almost as big a gallery as Ray or Vardon could have brought out.

It was a no-decision battle. They didn't keep score, not having sufficient paper on hand. Golf critics admitted that as golf players they were both expert fighters. With "control," however, some hope was extended for their future. Dempsey walloped an even dozen balls into a far away woods and Carpentier lost ten.

The conversation of the two champions cannot be given in words. Dempsey speaks no more French than Carpentier speaks English. The dialogue was all a master of the sign language. However, Dempsey knew enough to say "bon" when Georges made a terrible shot, and Carpentier gave him back "zat ees fine," when the champion rooted up the turf like a steam shovel.

A Spaniard named Sanchez, fighting down around the Panama Canal zone, has been rather persistent in his attempts to get a match with winning, aside from the achievement they stand for.

Soccerites as a whole deeply regret the removal of the Pats from London, as their display of sportsmanship throughout the City League season and the Cup Tie series had much to do with keeping soccer up to the high standard it attained this year.

Frank Moran and Joe Beckett's long-eferred clash is coming this month in onden. Moran landed last week, and getting right into training. Beckett's prained the first least sprained wrist postponed the fight last time, but this time the Briton is ready for the ginger-haired punishment absorber. If old slugging Frank should slip over his generally recognized but usually telegraphed haymaker, it would take some of the brilliance off Carpentier's one-round victory over the Englishman. Ted (Kid) Lewis is giving Johnny Basham another chance at the welter title of Europe this month. Basham didn't look any too good the last time, but he has still a lot of backers who think he can put Lewis away when he is in form.

Bootleggers Busy.

Bootlegging in Tillsonburg is being carried on with great impunity and with no great effort at secrecy. The ringleader known to be implicated was fined for the offence a few months ago, but the punishment does not appear to have been heavy enough to have served the desired purpose. Local newspapers are asking that an investigation be started by the proper authorities, and it is rumored on good authority that the crown attorney will be appealed to directly if local conditions fail to improve.

Bootleggers have openly made some serious allegations as to being immune from arrest, which will be investigated at the earliest possible moment. Interest in Election

Intense interest locally is being taken in the East Elgin by-elections, and several are attending the meetings of all the candidates. A feeling of optimism prevails among Bayham farmers, where W. G. Charlton turned a Conservative majority in 1917 of 200 to a Liberal majority of two, and these same farmers are not enthusiastic about supporting the U. F.
