WORM CANDY.—PAIN KING, &c.

gan's English Worm Candy" and "Pain King." The former, when given to three of our children who were very much troubled with worms, in all cases proved efficacious. The latter has been used most successfully in various complaints; and among others, by the writer, some two or three weeks ago, for a severe sore throat, and it was found to be an invaluable specific.

MRS. EDWARDS' INFANTS' FRIEND.—Godfrey's Cordial, and Paregoric, are medicines much used for children, but they are very hurtful because they contain Opium, which merely lulls the pain for the time, but leaves bad effects which often last through life. Mrs. Edwards' Infants' Friend does not contain Opium, but is composed of extracts of warm herbs and gentle anti-acids, which remove the pain, and do not injure the child in the slightest degree. All who try it will find it a most wonderful help to the mother. Again, I say it cannot do any harm.

MAGICAL PAIN KING A SPLENDID MEDICINE FOR HORSES.

East Oxford, September 18th, 1851.

MR. STARK.

I can most highly recommend your Magical Pain King as a liniment for cuts, sprains, bruises, etc. I have tried it often, and find it much better than Black or Gargling Oil.

Yours respectfully,

M. POWELL.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

The Pain King is a wonderful medicine.

Bartoo's Pills are the best I ever used.

ALEXANDER McMICKEN.

West Zorra.

Your Magical Pain King far surpasses all other remedies of the kind known as Ready Reliefs, Pain Killers, &c.

P. J. KENNEDY,

Eramora.

Your Cherry Balm has been the cause of saving me from death I most certainly believe.

JOHN BROWN,

Brant.

Your Cherry Balm has completely cured me, after having tried a great many remedies which did not do me the slightest good.
