Free Until Cured

Forty years ago, when I first discarded drugs and devoted my whole attention to the study of Electricity, I could not afford to do business on today's basis, but I have so perfected my Electric Appliances, and the knowledge I have gained from all these years of experience and research is so great, that I will now give my world-famous Dr. Sanden Electric Belt, with Electric Suspenders, to any man who suffers from Nervous Debility, Vertigo, Losses, Rheumatism, Lame Back, Stomach, Liver and Kidney Troubles, absolutely

FREE UNTIL CURED

I don't ask you to pay or deposit one cent until I convince you. Simply call or write for a Belt and wear it for two months, and if cured pay me the usual price. If not cured, return the Belt, and that ends the matter. If you prefer to pay cash, I give you the usual wholesale discount. Be sure you get the genuine. My great success has brought forth many imitations, and I must caution the public against their worthless, blistering imitations. Call today and take a Belt along, or write for one of my two valuable books on Electricity and its medical uses. Sent, sealed, free by mail.

Failed to Get Job After All

Dr. Lafleur Says He Put Up Money

MONTREAL, July 6.—Before the commission today Dr. Lafleur under oath stated that two years ago he attempted to get the position of stationer for the city. He had been seen by Alderman Nault, who had been told to go and see Ald. J. H. Nault. He asked for the position, but the matter did not seem to go ahead very quickly. The witness said that he must do more than merely ask for the position. He, therefore, offered the alderman $100, but was told this was not enough. He then offered $200, and Alderman Nault told him the position was his if he would come the next morning and place the $200 in a certain small drawer which the alderman indicated. He had done as he was told. He did not get the position, and had asked for the return of the money. Alderman Nault told him to take the money in the same way as he had given it.

"At the end of his testimony the witness said: 'I swear solemnly that all this is true, and I defy anybody to come into this box and say to the contrary.'"

Alderman Nault was then called and swore that he knew nothing of the affair in any way. "Do you ever think what Dr. Lafleur said is not true?" "I do not remember the affair."

How Wiley Payne Ended Cowboy Raid

Punchers in Fight With Rail-roads Who Put Out Lights and Threw Billiard Cues

Leader, Waving Gun and Shooting Offlances, Given a Sermon by Payne Which Turned Party Back.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 6.—A prominent politician of today, who was a cowboy in Southern Kansas along in the early eighties, recalled a story the other night concerning Wiley Payne. "Payne, you remember," he said, "was killed, I think, in 1884, at Medicine Lodge. An attempt was made to rob his bank and Payne was killed resisting the outlaws."

"This story I have in mind occurred in Harper about 1880. The town was one of the cattle centres and not infrequently a big band of cowpunchers stopped there, either going or coming from their drives. One night a lot of cowboys were in a Harper saloon. They got into a fuss with a bunch of railroaders, and the punchers got the worst of the deal. The cowboys would have won in the fight, for there were more of them and they were all hand with their guns, but the railroaders put out the lights at a certain signal, did some execution and have with billiard cues and made their escape through a back door exit about which the cowboys did not know."

"Naturally the punchers were sore and they decided that the next time they came to Harper they would avenge the insult—at least they thought it an insult. So in due time a big gang of the punchers were back at Harper. They had with them a cook, who went by the name of 'Babe,' or something like that. This cook's home was in Harper and his folks lived in the town. He suspected, when the punchers camped just outside of Harper and seemed to be connecting some sort of deal, that they were planning a raid on the town. At the first opportunity he came into Harper and apprised some of the people of his suspicions."

"The town promptly went to work to organize itself for the fray. They knew the cowboy character and his proclivities for being quick and easy with the trigger. Every shooting iron in town was pressed into service. The hardware stores gave up their stock within an hour, and men were looked along the street in secret search of weapons."

Smith Girls Spent $50,000 on Dresses

Upheld the Reputation of Their Institute as "Best Dressed" College for Women.

President Said He Hoped It Will be the Last Show of the Kind at Northampton.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., July 7.—Smith College has won the reputation of being one of the best dressed American colleges for women, and this was maintained by the gorgeous display of baccalaureate Sunday, when the display of gowns and hats was the richest in the history of the college. At a luncheon on the campus one of the matrons expressed the opinion that the girls had come to the turn of the road and that never again will Smith behold so glorious a show. Said one of the matrons:

"Never before were so many rich and beautiful gowns worn, and I understand that it is the desire of President Sedgwick that never again shall there be such a show. The amount of money spent was simply enormous. Things have been going so fast now it is practically impossible for a girl not to look entirely out of place unless she wears a gown that is far better, probably, than any she ever had before, or ever will have again."

"The extent to which the girls carried their love for fine clothes this commencement has done more to water in the academic cap and gown than any other thing that has ever happened here. For years the college has been opposed to the academic cap and gown, and as the very modest estimate of $100 a girl the aggregate bill for clothes was not far from $50,000."

"It was a great season for Northampton dressmakers. Every dressmaking establishment in the city was literally stacked to the ceiling with college work, and the sewing girls worked day and night without sleep. One girl worked twenty-six hours on a stretch."

Lacked a Nickel

Trouton Man Lost His Barn in Consequence.

TRENTON, N. J., July 6.—The lack of a nickel to drop into a telephone slot and the obtaining of an exchange girl cost Oscar F. Nield $1,000 when his barn was destroyed by fire. Nield's barn caught fire about 10 o'clock and he hastened to a telephone booth in the neighborhood to summon the fire engine. On his way to drop a nickel into the slot he discovered he had none.

"He told the girl it was a case of life and death, but she insisted that her headquarter could not be called up without the proper charge being paid. Nield begged, pleaded, threatened and tore his hair in vain."

Human Sacrifice Stopped by Police

Priest Was in the Act of Stabbing Boy on Altar.

Seet in Russia Worshipped Wooden Idols and Had Slain Many of Its Members.

LONDON, July 6.—For months past the police of the government of Pskov, Russia, have been endeavoring to trace a number of persons who had disappeared, mostly young men and girls. At length they received information that led them to connect the disappearance with a religious sect, the Krasnoborski, the members of which met in secret places.

"The police broke into one of their gatherings. The people were found to be worshipping idols rudely carved in wood. On a sort of altar a boy was lying, bound hand and foot, while over him stood a priest chanting in a strange tongue and brandishing a long knife. There could be little doubt that a human sacrifice was about to take place, so the police promptly arrested all those present."

"On a search being made in a cave hidden by the rocks an underground graveyard was discovered, from which the police exhumed several bodies which were subsequently identified as those of persons for whom they had been seeking. It is stated that the victims had all gone voluntarily to their deaths in a spirit of religious fanaticism. Charges of murder will be preferred against all the members of the sect who have been arrested."

Warships Off London

Possibility of Fleets Visit Due to an Accident.

LONDON, July 6.—Everyone is looking forward to the arrival of the fleet in the port of London this month and everywhere the brilliance of the idea of bringing this huge naval force before the eyes of Londoners is admitted, and yet the generals of the scheme might be described as accidental.

"Not so long ago an officer in command of some four or five war ships for cruising purposes found it necessary to take a temporary shelter in the Thames instead of doing what any other commander would have done, to make for the naval port of Chatham."

"He happened himself of the port of London as being as open to him as anyone else with ships of his size, and as the very modest estimate of $100 a girl the aggregate bill for clothes was not far from $50,000."

Nothing is Wrong with Early, Reputed Leper, Says Expert

Attaches of New York Cancer Hospital Laugh at Fears—Walks to Institution.

NEW YORK, July 6.—John B. Early, the former soldier in the regular army who has been subjected to a lot of in-jury since August last, simply because he remarked, "I wonder if I have leprosy," arrived in New York from Washington this morning, and is now in a ward at the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital. Seven patients suffering from skin troubles of various kinds are in the ward with him, and they are taking a lot of interest in the case.

"Early was told by the conductor of the train just as he was nearing Jersey City that the railroad company had issued orders that no conditions would be permitted to detain at the station. The train was stopped in the yards, and he and Captain Beavers, of the Salvation Army, and a friend from Washington (the three had been locked in the baggage car all night), climbed out and walked the ties. They went to the station just the same and bought ferry tickets to Twenty-third street. Then they walked to the hospital."

Mr. Walker Weds Miss Violet Butler

At the residence of Mrs. E. V. Burwell, Sussex Ave., Toronto, on Saturday evening, the marriage was celebrated by Rev. Mr. Dicken, of his sister Violet, daughter of the late H. T. Butler, of Stratford, to Edward Blake Walker, of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Paris, son of Dr. Thos. Walker, of this city. Pains and poonies decked the drawing room and the wedding march was rendered by Miss Perth Butler.

The bride was given away by E. V. Burwell. She wore a beautiful princess coat of ivory duchesse satin and lace with a high collar and long sleeves, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies. Her sister Beatrice, in white lingerie, stood by her side, and the bridesmaids were in white, with picture hats with plumes, was her only attendant, and F. Walker, of Calgary, supported his brother.

"The conclusion of the ceremony Miss Maud Butler sang 'Calm Was the Night,' and later Mr. and Mrs. Walker left for Niagara for their honeymoon. The bride's going away gown was of navy blue cloth with white lace."
