ANIMAL AFFECTION — Messrs. Gonder & Co., contractors on the Boston water works, had a valuable cart horse severely injured a few days since, near Coghlan's village. The animal was led home to the stable, where about fifty horses are generally kept. The hostler owns a water spaniel, who for some months has been constantly about among the horses in the stable, living on terms of great friendship with them. Immediately after the disabled horse was led in, he laid down and began to exhibit signs of great distress. The spaniel at once run to the horse and commenced fawning around him, licking the poor animal's face, and in divers other ways manifesting his sympathy with the sufferer. The struggles and groans of the horse being continued, the dog sought his master, and drew his attention to the wounded horse, and manifested great satisfaction when he found his master employed in bathing the wounded animal, and otherwise ministering to his wants. The hostler examined his cuts of the horse until a late hour in the night, and then called the dog to go home; but the affectionate creature would not leave his suffering friend, and continued by him all night.—And up to the time we last heard from the dog—forty-eight hours after the horse was injured,—the faithful spaniel had not left the suffering horse day nor night, for a minute, not even to eat; and from his appearance, it is believed that he has scarcely slept at all. He is constantly on the alert; and suffering any one to come near the horse, except those attached to the stable and the owner of the animals; and his whole appearance is one of extreme distress and anxiety. He often lays his head on the horses neck, caresses him and licks around his eyes; which kindness the poor horse acknowledges by a grateful look and other signs of recognition — Boston Traveller.

A WOLF IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING — The New York Herald says:—A Methodist blacksmith, of Petersburg, Va., some time since left an interesting family, consisting of a wife and three children, and ran off with a young lady of highly respectable family, aged only 17 years. He soon after arrived in this city, and under the assumed name of Perkins, engaged apartments in First street, where he did not remain long, however, in consequence of his whereabouts having been discovered. He then removed his victim to a respectable house in Seventh avenue. The captain in whose vessel they came to this city, at the earnest entreaty of the heart-stricken mother of the young lady, set himself to work to discover, if possible, her place of abode, and persuade her to return to her home. On Thursday last, he succeeded in finding the object of his search, and after considerable persuasion, she consented to return with him to her maternal roof. The following day she would be ready to embark; but through the influence of her villainous seducer, when the captain went for her, she positively refused to go with him—and ere this exposition of his infamy meets the eye of the reader, she will doubtless have been removed to parts unknown.

☞ The following Address was presented to the Hon. Judge Street at the late Assizes Court in the County of Albert. His answer is annexed.

"To the Honorable George Frederick Street, one of her Majesty's Justices of the Supreme Court of Judicature for the Province of New Brunswick.

"SIR—

"We the Grand Jurors of the County of Albert, avail ourselves of the occasion of your first visit to the County, to present our sincere congratulations upon your advancement to your present situation in the Provincial Judicature. Although but few of us have had the honour of your personal acquaintance, yet, your high character for uprightness and integrity in private life, and the profundity of your legal learning, have long been known to us, and we recognize in your appointment another evidence of the maternal solicitude of our most gracious Majesty, to promote the interests and happiness of Her dutiful and loyal subjects in this part of the British Empire. Our recent organization into a County of the Province, renders impossible for us to treat your honour with that comfortable attention, which you meet with in older counties, but we yield to none in the warmth and sincerity of our welcome, and we trust that as the County increases in age and prosperity, we shall have many opportunities of convincing your Honour of the truth of this assertion.

"We wish you a protracted enjoyment of the honours and blessings of life, and hope that we may long have the benefit of your Honor's impartiality, independence, and erudition, in administering the laws under which we live, and that the discharge of your important duties, may be as pleasant and agreeable to yourself, as it will be creditable to the Bench and beneficial to the Province.

(Signed) JOHN A. REED,
Foreman Grand Jury."

To which his Honor immediately replied, substantially, as follows:—

"GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY,

"Personally unknown as I am to most of you, it cannot but be highly gratifying to me, to find that both as a professional man and a private individual, my character stands so high in the estimation of my fellow subjects in this part of the Province, more particularly, that it should have given rise to the kind and flattering address, with which I have just been presented, by so respectable a body of men as the Grand Jury of this beautiful and flourishing County, and Gentlemen, I beg to return you my best thanks for the expression of your sentiments. I am well assured how all important it is for the public good, that the Bench of the Supreme Court should be filled by men, professing high integrity of character, as well as legal proficiency: both those qualifications are most essentially necessary to insure perfect confidence, that justice will be administered with strict impartiality and according to law, and my best endeavours shall be at all times zealously exerted, to prove to you and the public at large, that the high opinion of me, which you as well as the Grand Jurors of the other Counties in the Province where I have been, entertain, is well founded. I sincerely hope that when I shall again have the pleasure of visiting you, in the discharge of official duties, I shall find your new County rapidly advancing in improvements and prosperity, and that it will then be as free from crime, as I have the gratification of finding it upon this occasion. I have now the pleasure of discharging you, Gentlemen, from any further attendance upon this Court, you having got through with all the business brought before you; and I again thank you for the kind good wishes you have been pleased to express, for my own personal comfort.

RAILWAY FROM ST. JOHN TO SHEDIAC.—We learn with much satisfaction, that an application has been made to Government by M. H. Perley, Esq., for the survey of the line of country between this City and the Port of Shediac, by way of Hampton Ferry, Sussex Vale, and the Bend of Petitcodiac; and that if Military officers can be spared for the purpose, an exploratory survey or reconnaissance, will take place the present season, with the view of ascertaining what engineering difficulties, if any, exist on the proposed route and the facilities it offers for the construction of a line of Railway.

There is no route from the City of St. John which would lead through so fine a line of country, which is already well settled, and abounding in resources of every description. We wish every success to this spirited undertaking, which we understand is to be called the GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—New Brunswick.

THE PEAK FAMILY.—We beg to direct public attention to the advertisement in another column, of the celebrated Peak Family, who intend giving a Concert on Tuesday evening next. We understand that their last Entertainment was well attended, and gave general satisfaction.

☞ The Mail for England will be closed to-morrow Saturday, the 28th instant, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

There is, perhaps, no disease with which our country is afflicted, which sweeps off annually so many victims, as that fell destroyer of the human race—Consumption. Day after day, year after year, the inexorate monster hurries to the portals of the cold and silent tomb, fresh added victims to its conquest. No walk of life is sacred from its blighting influence.—No age is exempt from its death-dealing shafts. The old, the middle-aged and the young, all alike, are food for this common enemy of mankind. The white haired patriarch, whose life of temperance has rendered his system impervious to the attacks of other ills, and whose good deeds prepared him for the enjoyment of life's calm evening, finds consumption fastening its fangs upon his vitals, and tearing him from a world, ever bright to minds which look complacently on days well spent.

Is there no help for the afflicted? No preventative of the dangers which beset us in our changeable and fickle clime? We think there may be. And if the allegations of those who are at least entitled to veracity, may be believed, there is a preventive and a remedy.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is offered to a suffering world as such. It needs not the "advertisements and" of a long string of fictitious certificates to give it notoriety. Its true value and intrinsic excellence are sufficient to entitle it to the confidence of the public, and
