derive profitable instruction from that portion of the sachistory which is now before us, and may copy, with vantage, the example of Nehemiah.

I. Let us consider the undertaking in which are engaged.

The Christian church, at the time of its establishm was beautiful and glorious. It was "built upon the fo dation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ him being the chief corner stone." The truths of the go were understood and enjoyed. Spiritual happiness its lustre on the community. Believers cultivated "meekness and gentleness of Christ," and "fruits righteousness" were produced, "to the praise and glor Jews and Gentiles ceased to strive, uniting in fellowship, and seeking each other's good. Full obedie to the laws of the Saviour was rendered. A simple f of government prevailed, admirably adapted to prom union and preserve purity. A spirit of enterprise vaded the whole body. In those days, men "lived The church was "fair as the moon, clear the sun, and terrible as an army with banners."

But disastrous changes soon took place, affecting entire frame-work of Christian society, and issuing worse than Babylonish captivity. Corrupting influe were in operation even in apostolic times. They partially held in check by persecution, but exerted fold power when persecution ceased. Truth was suppla by trifles, or neutralised by human tradition, and "w of faith" yielded to superstitious observances. Divers of opinion were counted as heresies. Instead of argun and prayer, the apostolic "weapons of warfare," profes Christians resorted to new methods of attack and defe altogether opposed to the spirit of the gospel. were at first cursed—then cudgelled—and afterward additional power was obtained, imprisoned, banished put to death. True piety fled from such scenes. Script churches were rarely to be found; they were scatt abroad and driven into corners. For many centuries city of God lay in ruins. Angels gazed and wonder Devils triumphed. The people of the Most High, and sad, wept, and prayed, and waited, and as mournfully watched for returning day, exclaimed, all in unbelief, "Arise, O Lord! how long?"

At length the morning came. After a long seaso ness, tw he labou , forgott brance. n. truth n to ret Chris sh or inte Reforme ng to the nt zeal : er occu nent of ght was iam Tyr n poure is conte mer, La v unveile relical de e word o all rewar acy put : es and th r could s rmers, ar disentang

e adduce
ach has b
aplished.
directio
ity to t
as baptism
e majorit
remonies
sed to be
, after th
are ende

xercise

ious allia

mmated i

tigations

ripture, a

in faith