

INDEX

ABBOT. See Boniface, Eustace
'Alas! alas! not ours the grace,' 102

Allan Glen, viii

All-Hallow's Eve, 19, 23

'A mightier wizard far than I,' 157

'Ask thy heart, whose secret cell,' 157

Attaint, 143, 378

Author's Introduction, vii; answer to Captain Clutterbuck's Letter, xlv

Avenel, Alice of, 14; takes refuge at Glendearg, 17; reads from the Book, 24; death, 61

Avenel, Julian, 21, 213; description of, 216; his reception of Halbert and Warden, 221; spurns Catherine, 230; his crooked policy, 293, 318; prototype of, 231, 379

Avenel, Mary, 17; sees the White Lady, 18; sees her father's ghost, 24; her relations to Halbert and Edward, 91; description of her, 113; interposes between Halbert and Sir Pierce, 132; tries to hold back Halbert, 190; accuses Sir Pierce of murder, 241; her sorrow for Halbert, 285; visited by the White Lady, 286; discovers the Book, 288; marriage, and settlement at Avenel Castle, 372

Avenel, Walter, 14

Avenel Castle, 212, 373, 379

BAILIE, of the monastery, 81

Ballantyne, Mr. John, lii

Beef sold by measure, 77, 377

Benedictine stranger, at Kennaquhair, xxix; searches the ruins, xxxix; gives the Memoirs to Captain Clutterbuck, xli

Black Ormiston, Laird of, 379

Bolton, Stawarth, at Glendearg, 10; disarmed by Halbert, 349; left as a hostage, 353; exposes Sir Pierce, 369

Boniface, Abbot, 31; his troubles, 43; in counsel with Father Eustace, 46; his alarm for Father Philip, 50; hears Father Eustace's confession, 81; visits Glendearg, 136; receives Sir Pierce's explanation, 142; at dinner, 162; proposes to make Halbert his forester, 163, 171; his resignation, 323

Book, Lady Avenel's, 24; mysterious return of, 59; in the fairy cavern, 100; discovered by Mary, 288

Borderers, good faith of, 320, 382

Border wars, 2, 9, 342

Bourne, Georgie, 380

Bridge-end, 37, 376

'By ties mysterious link'd,' 158

CAREY, Sir Robert, quoted, 380

Carta de Pitancia Centum Librarum, 383

Catherine of Newport, 219; spurned by Julian, 230; found on the battlefield, 347

Chalmers, on Douglas pedigree, 384

Christie of the Cluthill, 66; quarrels with Father Eustace, 67; a prisoner in the monastery, 78; freed by Eustace, 81;

guides Sir Pierce to Glendearg, 117;

leads Halbert and Warden into the castle, 216; takes Warden to Glendearg,

230; unfolds Julian's policy, 293, 318;

sets off to find Sir Pierce, 329; his death, 348

Church vassals, in Scotland, 2, 375

Cleishbotham, Jedediah, death of, li

Clutterbuck, Captain, Introductory Epistle

from, xxi; interview with the Benedictine, xxix; helps him in his search

xxxix; receives the Memoirs, xli

Colmslie tower, x

'Complain not of me,' 159

Corrie-nau-Shian, glen of, 8, 193

DAN of the Howlethirst, 267

'Daring youth! for thee it is well,' 156

'Dim burns the once bright star,' 158

'Do not ask me,' 157

Douglas family, pedigree of, 365, 384

Editors, fictitious, xlviii

Epithets, quaint, use of, 132, 378

Euphuism, xv, 381

Eustace, Father, his position at Kenna-

quhair, 44; in counsel with the abbe-

46; visits Glendearg, 55; altercation

with Christie, 67; carries off the Book

71; encounter with the White Lady,

72; liberates Christie, 81; his confession to the abbot, 84; his views on guarding Edward, 85; listens to