THE PILOT THAT WEATHERED THE STORM

VOL. XXVIII

F hush'd the loud whirlwind that ruffled the deep, The sky, if no longer dark tempests deform, When our perils are past, shall our gratitude sleep? No! Here's to the pilot that weather'd the storm!

At the footstool of Power let Flattery fawn; Let Faction her idol extol to the skies; To Virtue in humble retirement withdrawn, Unblamed may the accent of gratitude rise!

And shall not his memory to Britain be dear,
Whose example with envy all nations behold?
A statesman unbias'd by interest or fear,
By power uncorrupted, untainted by gold!

Who, when terror and doubt thro' the universe reigned When rapine and treason their standards unfurl'd. The hearts and the hopes of his country ma

When he sinks into twilight with fondness we gaze
And mark the mild lustre that gilds his decline. So, Pitt, when the course of thy greatness is o'er, Thy talents, thy virtues, we fondly recall; Now justly we prize thee, when lost we deplore Admired in thy zenith, but loved in thy fall.

() take then, for dangers by wisdom repell'd, For evils by courage and constancy braved, O take, for the throne by thy counsels upheld, The thanks of a people thy firmness has saved.

And oh! if again the rude whirlwind should rise, The dawning of peace should fresh darkness deform The regrets of the good and the fears of the wise, Shall trun to the pilot that weather'd the storm.
