They were first used in Beston to raise money for the wounded soldiers of the Civil War. million dollars was raised between '32 and '65. The movement was then discontinued on this continent for a generation. It reappeared in the meantime in different forms in many European countries. A Norwegian stamp on a letter to Jacob Rils, the eminent Social worker, New York, revived Interest on this side. He published an article suggesting possible new uses for the stamps. Like many another bright idea, Mr. Rils' suggestion fe'll into good ground, sprang up and multiplied a thousand fold. The good ground was the resourceful miles. fold. The good ground was the re-sourceful mind of an energetic Red Cross Society Lady Secretary, who cealized three thousand dollars right away from a stamp campaign. The American Red Cross Society then Schate, took the stamps up on a national pass.

That was in 1908.
