THE SITUATION.
The town of Ribecourt, on the road leading to Noyon, has been captured by the French after a sharp engagement. Preparations for a German counter-attack were broken up by Allied infantry and some battalion commanders taken.

The Australians have cleared the enemy from Cateaux wood and taken all hostile positions between the western outskirts of Bray and Etienneville. In addition, the foe have evacuated to the British their lines on a five-mile front north of Albert.

The figures with regard to submarine tolls continue to make good reading. During July Allied and neutral shipping thus sank reached a total of 270,000 tons, as compared with 134,000 tons in July of 1917. The decrease is all the more notable because of the fact that there has lately been a marked increase in merchant marine navigation.

There has been a lifting of the curtain with regard to affairs in Moscow. After witnessing the violation of the French and British consulates, the American Consul destroyed his papers, turned the affairs of the office over to Sweden and demanded a safe conduct from the country of himself and associates.

It is anticipated that the comparative lull on the Western front may soon witness another series of operations of first magnitude on the part of the Allies.

MOHAWK PARK.
It is safe to affirm that no other city in Ontario can boast of such a great natural resort as Mohawk Park. It is beautifully wooded with many shady dells, there is a splendid sheet of water alongside for bathing and boating facilities and a large arena for sports. Old timers will remember when crowds used to surge down there to attend baseball matches and evening bicycle races, and with the re-erection of a substantial grand stand and some other expenditures this portion of the grounds could again be made a centre of attraction. Then there used to be a stock company in a theatre for the summer months and many other forms of diversion. The result was that excursions from many outside places used to be run here almost daily during the hot weather period and the number of visitors amounted to many thousands each season. Then matters were allowed to lapse, with the consequence that what should prove a place of great and enjoyable resort has in late years fallen into half-hearted notice and patronage. The possibilities are great and undoubted, but they have been sadly neglected—there can be no doubt at all about that.

The people own this magnificent property. The sum of $25,000 was paid for it by the municipality and some other land was also acquired to construct a wide approach which has never been done. The people also own the Street Railway, by which the resort can be handily reached and in both respects, under a progressive policy, infinite pleasure and recreation could not only be afforded citizens, but in addition these two publicly owned enterprises could acquire much to be desired financial earnings. Nature, with a lavish hand, has bestowed of her best upon Mohawk Park and other attractions should be added in the shape of innocent and healthy amusements. There should be a driveway constructed for autos with a nominal charge for entrance as an offset to loss of car fare and the sports arena, brought up-to-date. The street car service should also be more frequent and care taken to efficiently handle the crowds on special occasions. If the park could be made a successful and enjoyable centre when the city was not nearly its present size and opportunities to reach Brantford by radial were non-existent, surely it can be made trebly so now with the local population at 30,000 and three radial feeders reaching this centre. The cordial response and approval of citizens with regard to The Courier agitation in this matter affords abundant proof that citizens are ripe and eager for a broad-minded and comprehensive policy.

The thing can be done and should be done and it is up to the members of the Parks Board and the Street Railway Board to get together with reference to some comprehensive plan. Such a cause would have public backing and hearty cooperation. In short, the people are not only alive to the need for such action, but expect it to be taken.

THE HINDU SETTLEMENT.
Sir Robert Borden, who is depleted by some papers as idling away his time in the Old Land, continues, to accomplish a lot of work with regard to Dominion interests. One of the things accomplished is with reference to the Hindu problem. The Pacific provinces in particular have been deeply interested in this matter. Some of these Orientals are already located there, not in large numbers, it is true, but their presence and willingness to work for a wage which would be starvation for a white man and his family, has led to much feeling and apprehension. Sir Robert, in this regard, has been in conference with the Hindu representatives who were in attendance at the Imperial conference, and as the outcome it is announced that a solution has been reached. It is that any further general migration to British Columbia is to cease, while those Hindus at present there will be permitted to have their wives and children join them. The changes are that in the years to come, even these will gradually get back to their own country for they miss the native customs and environment. The solution will be regarded by most people as fair and satisfactory.

PRINCE LEFT TORONTO.
Toronto, Aug. 15.—Prince Arthur of Connaught left this city this morning at 9 o'clock for London. He boarded the train at Government House siding, and meanwhile a guard of honor of 200 R.A.F. men stood waiting at the Union Station to see the Royal visitor off. They were hurriedly moved by street car to north Toronto, and there discovered that the Prince was boarding the train about one mile east of Government House. However, the Prince's train pulled in, and he inspected them on his way to London.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT.
Toronto, Aug. 15.—W. G. Saltsbury's Rovers (Toronto) defeated the Ontario trophy, one of the important cups of the Dominion Bowling tournament. Brown beat the Ontario trophy in the present tournament and required extra ends to win. Only in the industrial centres but at the great shipping ports as well, and the general opinion seems to be that America will "use every effort to harm German interests" by barring Germany from all the raw products she bought from us before the war. As usual, the Germans indulge in bombast rather than fact, and grandiose threats are made as to what the Fatherland will do to us if we don't behave ourselves after the conflict. For example, the Berlin Deutsche Zeitung says:

"If America sells us no cotton, she shall get no potash, which is a serious blow to the German agricultural land. Germany has a world-monopoly of potash. If America gives us no manganese and no grain, she shall get no dyes, no drugs, no glassware, no optical instruments—in fact, nothing that Germany has exported to the United States in the past."

TO CONSIDER NEW BILL.
Washington, Aug. 15.—Plans for beginning consideration in the senate next Monday of the new man power bill extending the draft ages, were blocked today by the failure of a quorum to appear when Chairman Chamberlain of the military committee, submitted to the measure with a favorable report. The senate adjourned Monday and the plan now is to have consideration of the bill next Tuesday if possible.

PRISONERS ESCAPING.
Washington, Aug. 15.—A great number of Russian prisoners, according to an official despatch from Copenhagen to-day, are escaping from Germany into Denmark. The despatch says that nearly every day fugitives arrive at Ribe, where they are well treated by Danes. A camp has been established for them near Ribe.

A War Prediction.
Mr. Bhattacharj, an Indian astrologer, of Calcutta, has issued a warning which has, at any rate, the merit of definiteness not always forthcoming in predictions of the kind. He predicted that vigorous battles would be fought at Mons on April 15th, 1918, at Namur on June 9th, and at Brussels on August 13th, in all of which the Germans will be defeated. The whole of Belgium will be freed from the hateful presence of the German invader before Dec. 2nd, 1918. Rhenish Prussia will be occupied by the Allies' forces before April 27th, 1919. The Allies will dictate terms of peace on July 1st, 1919, and an armistice will begin from Sept. 5th, 1919. So long as Salazar remains in power Mr. Bhattacharj thinks peace is not likely to be concluded, so that with the present winter we may look forward to at least two more Christmases in the field.—Family Herald.

IF ONLY THE SWEET MOMENTS COULD LAST!
There were times, in Ruth and Brian's married life, when they seemed perfectly compatible—when their companionship was complete. Then the storm clouds would come, again, and the period of happiness would be over; once more they would and themselves quarrelling over trifles and jarring on each other's nerves. At these compositions periods, Ruth would say, "I wish they had not made a mistake in marrying each other. Brian, too, had these misgivings in regard to the suitability of their marriage. But wait! Does not the fact that there were sunny periods at all, leave just the possibility that there might be sunshine all the time, under the right conditions? Of course it does. And the right conditions ever come?"

Margaret Garrett's Husband
By JANE PHELPS

CHAPTER CXXXII
The Ending
"O, my dear, you found daddy, didn't you?" Donald shouted.
"Yes, dear," I replied, a blush stealing up to the roots of my hair.
"Let's walk a little," I said, embarrassed. "Will you come over where you and George are," I said to Donald, and he, satisfied, ran on ahead.
"You are quiet," I remarked as we followed our boy.
"I have been alone so much it has made me so, perhaps," he replied with a slow smile.
"Tell me that I had not freed him to be alone and lonely, but that wouldn't do! I must not refer to her again. It might still hurt him too much. He had loved her."

Presently both voices were ringing out in laughter. Bob's deep tones and Donald's childish treble.
"Mr. Garrett must have been a brave soldier," Della remarked, with one of her loving glances at me. "It is awful to lose an arm."
"Daddy a soldier man's," George piped up.
"Is it good is his left arm?" I said quietly.
"None of them had been me and I was beside him listening to the story. Bob was telling them before anyone of them realized my presence."

"Oh, never," Donald who saw me first exclaimed, "daddy is talking me such a nice story. Can you hear?" he asked Bob.
"Can you hear?" Bob answered smiling at the little boy's story. "But this is a little boy's story, not a man's."

The labor men of the city had invited Mr. Crothers to address a meeting and are greatly incensed at his failure to comply with the invitation.

hand in hand. But when we turned toward the hotel, he raised his hat to go on his way. When Donald protested, he said:
"I am going for a long walk. Donald, I will see you again this afternoon, and Donald, not quite satisfied, reluctantly came with Della and me.
"I went to my room and lay down for a little while. I hoped I would see Bob that night at dinner—or after. Then I was seized with an idea that made me turn out with a shiver. Perhaps I never should see him again. He had said nothing about seeing me and had told Donald that afternoon. It was going out of my mind. I would once more have the piteous joy of being near him, of looking into his eyes, of hearing his voice.
"I remember I wore all white, hat, shoes, dress and carried a big rose and white stushade. By the time I was dressed the boys and Della had been some some time, so I walked slowly in the direction I knew they had gone.
"I came upon them sitting on the sand. Bob between the two boys, his arm around Donald, and Della quite a distance away knitting.
"None of them had been me and I was beside him listening to the story. Bob was telling them before anyone of them realized my presence."
