Bequest to Colored Nurse.

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 29.—The will of Delaval J. Beresford, who was killed in a wreck at Enderlin, N.D., last Sunday, was found at the First National Bank yesterday. The will was made in 1896, and after devising $10,000 to the colored woman who nursed him through an attack of yellow fever in New Orleans several years ago, the rest of his estate is left to his three brothers, Lord Charles Beresford, Marquis Beresford, and another brother, now dead. The value of the estate is a million dollars. Bequest to Colored Nurse.

Hereditary Politics
At first sight it must appear remarkable that parties and leaders hould be so ill-mated, but on reflecton there seems no reason for surprise. When it is considered how hereditary is the transmission of politics in his country, it seems rather wondeful that, after reading, travel, and thught, the family dogmas are not mee often questioned. Men are netted arly into political clubs; or fall, who callow, under the influence of sore statesman; or stand as youths or some constituency before they see considered the problems of his many never consider them at all; but those who do must often find the selves in disagreement with the polics which they have prematurely foressed. Some, too, must find that, tile they remain staunch to what see the funders and the selves in the marky self understant to the selves in the marky self understant to the selves the funders and the selves the funders and the selves the selves the selves the marky self understant the marky self understant the selves the selves to the selves the selves to the selves the Hereditary Politic Some, too, must find that, nile they remain staunch to what see the fundamental tenets, the party self, under erratic guidance, or luft by the prospect of monetary advalage, is wandering far from its fold and se, while they themselves remn orthodox, they are isolated by themorthodoxy of their friends. Add be which the politician sees the seam side or comfortless interior of his on party alone; he is not admitted to be drawbacks of the opposite faction so that the one in some respects sees more alluring than the other. If It these things be considered, it we seem alluring than the other. It is these things be considered, it wi seem marvelous that there are not ore po-litical conversions or perversits than there are.—From Rosebery's udy of Churchill.
