worn tail

Old Deacon Gray was a pious man,
Though sometimes tempted to be profane,
When many a weary mile he ran
To drive her out of his growing grain.
Sharp were the pranks she used to play
To get her fill and to get away.

She knew when the deacon went to town She wisely watched when he passed by; He never passed her without a frown, And an evil gleam in each angry eye; He would crack his whip in a surly way, And drive along in his "one-horse shay,"

Then at his homestead she loved to call, Then at his homestead she loved to can: Lifting his bars with crumpled horn: Nimbly scaling his garden wall, Helping herself to his standing corn; Eating his cabbages one by one, Hurrying home when her work was done

His human passions were quick to rise, And striding forth with a savage cry. With fury blazing from both his eyes, As lightnings flash in a summer sky, Redder and redder his face would grow, And after the creature he would go.

Over the garden round and round, Breaking his pear and apple trees; Tramping his melons into the ground, Overturning his hives of bees, Leaving him angry and badly stung, Wishing the old cow's neck was wrung

The mosses grow on the garden wall, The years went by with their work play,

The boys of the village grew strong and tall,
And the gray-haired farmers passed away
One by one, as the red leaves fall:
But the highway cow outlived them all
