It looks like bringing coal to Newcastle to buy coal in London and bring it here, yet that is what is being done by local butchers, who say they cannot buy calves here.—

[Clinton News Era.]

A Belmont correspondent writes: "A peculiar mishap took place last Saturday on the farm of J. G. Campbell, Yarmouth, whereby a valuable horse was killed. It appears that the animal when turned out to pasture went to the woods, and began rubbing itself against a tree that was decayed at the top, when a portion of it fell on the horse, breaking its neck. The horse was valued at $150."

The Advertiser acknowledges the receipt from Mr. Wm. Edgar, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, of a neat little volume entitled "Fishing and Hunting Resorts of the Grand Trunk Railway." It gives a large amount of valuable information for those who wish to spend their holidays away from home.

It will be furnished to anyone sending his address to Mr. Edgar, G. T. R. Montreal.

What came near being a serious accident on Oxford street the other night took place.

A sister of Mr. Shae, grocer, corner of Oxford and Waterloo streets, was driving to the city, when a buggy came in contact with a post, snapping the whiffletree and almost throwing the lady to the ground.

Had the horse been a spirited one the accident might have proved fatal. Mr. Shae had the rig fixed, and the lady drove on none the worse of the mishap.

Dwellers on Wellington street north who take pride in cultivating flowers to beautify their gardens are sorely afflicted by juvenile thieves, who not only steal the flowers but break and destroy the plants as well, causing much vexation of spirit to the owners thereof. "Cannot an 'arm of the law' wander around the neighborhood oc-asionally, or must we put up our fences against the depredations of these little catch the pilferers it will not be a very flowery meeting," he continued, with fire in his eye.

Well, well! It seems to me

Your days are hardly quite as rare

As they're cracked up to be.
