John: "For their sake I sanctify myself."

The sermon called attention to the many suggestions made as to the proper qualifications for the pulpit, and pointed out that all was of no use without holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. The preaching of the Word is God's means of bringing men to himself, and the secret of success is set forth in the text. Holiness is essential to the work of the ministry. Entire consecration to his service has more influence than many other qualifications. The Word denotes consecration and complete devotion to the work, and the Lord Jesus is thus our mediator and example. There is thus our mediator and example. There must be the same consecration in his people: the same devotion to the work which God has given them to do. There s no scope for successful shamming n the ministry. The eyes of men and he eyes of God are upon his ministering servants. A minister's success will
