Deliberations of the Types-Scandal in Connection with the Childs-Drexel Home-The Wages of Women.

Connection with the Childs-Broken Home.—The Warges of Women.

Chilcago, June 18.—The International Typogragraphical Union decided to publish the report of the recent investigation of the Childs-Drexel Home by President Prescot, of the International Union, in person. It was found, it is said, the funds had been grossly misappropriated; that the home had not been built according to the specifications, and that at present the building was in such a condition that it is liable to collapse. The investigation committee found the board of trustees guilty of a violation of trust, and censured as especially responsible for this condition of affairs JD. Vaugh, of Colorado Springs, and August Donath, of Washington. Upon legal advice, it was decided not to prosecute, but to remove the two offending trustees. The sum of $5,500 was then appropriated to put the home in a proper condition.

The question of a separate scale of wages for female compositors came up. A separate scale is demanded by the Boston union, where there are over 1,000 nonunion female compositors. The wish of the Boston union is to organize these wemen upon a lower scale for wages. The opposition demanded the same scale for wemen as for men. The matter was referred to the executive council by a yea and nay vote of 87 to 85. Miss Pierson, delegate from Albany, then withdrew from the floor of the convention, claiming that women delegates had no place in the control of the International Typographical Union only foremen belonging to the allied crafts be employed was target the sum of the union to an attenuate reconsiliation with the International Typographical Union only foremen belonging to the allied crafts be employed was target the sum of the sum of the union to an attenuate reconsilation with the International Typographical Union only foremen belonging to the allied crafts be employed was target the sum of the sum of the union to an attenuate reconsilation with the Internation of the control of the Internation of the control of the control of the union to

It was voted to give the entire authority of issuing labels to the executive council. The convention gave its approval to the attempted boycott on the Ottenburg Bros.' cigar in New York City.

The matter of reduction of the ten-hour day for the book and job printers created a discussion as to whether to make the demand for nine and one-half, or nine hours. A vote resulted in victory for the hours. A vote resulted in victory for the nine-hour plan, 76 to 60; this to go into

MR. LAURIER ARRIVES.

Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal leader, arrived shortly after noon, and was met by a big crowd at the Canada Atlantic station. Among those on the platform were Hon. D. Mills, Hon. R. Watson, Hon. E. H. Bronson, Senators Scott and Power, James Sutherland, M.P., Mr. McMullen, M.P., and Robert Jaffray, president of the Toronto Globe. Several hundred citizens, headed by Ald. McLean, president of the Ottawa Reform Association, welcomed the Liberal leader with loud cheers. As he appeared on the platform of the car Mr. Laurier, dressed in a light tweed suit, looked the picture of health.

On the same train arrived Premier Fielding and Attorney-General Langley, Premier Blair, Premier Peters, L. H. Davis, A. G. Jones and a mighty delegation from down

MILITARY CHURCH PARADES.

The Ministerial Association Talks About Them—Opinions Fro and Con—Sunday Steamors to Wonderland Discountenanced.

Military church parades were a bone of contention at this morning's meeting of the Ministerial Association. Rev. Dr. Antliff presented a resolution, seconded by Rev. J. R. Dr. Antliff objected to parades on the ground of the pomp and vanity and display. We believe that in this regard we speak is greated a companiment of the pomp and vanity and display.

We believe that in this regard we speak the feelings of the Liberal party of Canada towards you, and that there never has been a time when the flame of their devotion to you has been more widespread and more intense than it is at this moment.

We believe that the people of Canada are to-day looking to you not merely as the honored leader of a great party, but as the hope and pride of our country.

Both were railroad vietims, and the bodies lay on the stretchers that they were originally brought in on, awaiting the verdict of the coroner's jury. Death appeared to have dealt more kindly with the gray haired man than with the youth, whose terribly mangled frame lay opposite.

But not so the body of the younger man. The remorseless iron wheels had evidently dragged, and crushed, and ground his body mercilessly. The vital injuries were on the right side. His right leg was shockingly crushed and mangled from the thigh to the ankle. The jury then viewed the body of young Lally. It was identified by Joseph Fitzhenry and Thomas White, Lally's brother-in-law. The latter said it was two months ago since he had seen deceased last. He had known him sometimes to get the worse of liquor.

of liquor.

James Connor, aged 17, of Toronto, and James Connor, aged 17, of Toronto, and Matthias Charlebois, a year older, and a native of Buffalo, were then examined, but could throw no light on the accident. In fact, they did not see Lally get on the train. They had walked from St. Thomas to London that afternoon, and wanted to get to Buffalo as quickly as possible. Between 6 and 7 o'clock they were sitting on a pile of logs to the south of the London East station, when a "mixed" came down the yard from the city. Lally and a companion got off this mixed and came and sat down beside the witness. They were both the worse of liquor, and were boasting of a recent exploit over which they chuckled heartily.

"We went into a grocery store this afternoon," one of them was saying, "and way, we took the tomatoes, and told het to send for the patrol if she liked."

By this time the mixed had drawn out and a "hog" freight was preparing to follow. Lally went over to a foundry to get a drink, and on coming back the train had started to move. He swung himself on a car near the engine, but apparently did not like his position and jumped off again. The two witnesses got on near the center of the train, and when last they saw Lally and his companion they were away near the caboose, but they could not say whether or not they took the same train. Charlebois' description of Lally's companion was very minute. He was of a heavier build than the dead man, and perhaps his senior. He wore a sandy, stubby

There are many that mount the pulpit, but if it were true in the past it is emphatically have in the present, that congregations are often left enveloped in the fog. What we need in you, what is needed in the present day, what is needed for the 1,500,000,000 of the earth to-day, is a clear, heaven-won teaching, that the blind may realize in it, that the deaf may hear it, and that the deaf do the deaf have hear it, and that the believes that Christ is a Saviour only, not that he is one that might save, can save, and will save, but believes that he is the only Saviour, and that without him all is death, and that within him all is life. We need a ministry that is faithful to the great doctrines of salvation. When you go among people to-day you find how dark, they could be the present of the mare on the great cardinal doctrines of salvation, the great cardinal doctrines of salvation, ustification by faith, Christ only without in and the inspiration of the Word of mon, the bishop impressed upon the candi-dates the necessity of teaching the absolute and plain inspiration of God's most holy word, the doctrine of justification by faith, nd that there was but one alternative t was to be either Christ and life, or for he rejection of Christ and eternal death.

Cabinet Ministers Here. Cabinet Ministers Here.

Hon. J. G. Haggart, Minister of Railways; Hon. J. C. Patterson, Minister of Militia; Dr. Montague, M.P., of Haldimand, and Senator McLaren, of Perth, passed through the city Saturday, en route home from the Northwest via Chicago. Notwithstanding that the unjority of the City Council has determined to do Government work at the expense of the city, Mr. Patterson, in conversation here, reterrated his statement that it was the intention to his statement that it was the intention to make London the permanent camping head-quarters of this district and that such had on his decision all along. This confirms position taken by the ADVERTISER that the position taken by the Advertiser that the construction on the camp grounds should be undertaken by the Government, as it is a public work. Mr. Patterson said the drill shed here would be greatly improved next year. He would probably paya visit to the London camp this week. The party were all full of praise for the World's Fair. Monster Dicnic. Monster Picnic.

On Wednesday last one of the largest pionics ever held in the county of Brant took place on the historic Bow Park farm, near Brantford, under the auspices of the Patrons. The chair was occupied by William Roddick, president of the Brant County Association. On the platform heaids William Roddick, president of the Brant County Association. On the platform beside him were C. A. Mallory, grand president of the order; A. Gifford, grand trustee; John Charlton, M. P., Wm. Paterson, M.P., James Somerville, M.P., Hon. A. S. Hardy, M.P.P., Commissioner of Crown Landy, and W. B. Wood, M.P.P. There were fully 5,000 persons present. The pionic was held in a large grove, which afforded admirable shelter from the burning sun. A brass band was in attendance, and from a specially erected platform speeches were delivered during the afternoon. lengthy address, condemning in sweeping terms the National Policy as one of the most disastrous policies ever pursued by a vivilized government. Hon. A. S. Hardy, civilized government. Hon. A. S. Hardy, in a short address, complinented the farmers on standing up for their rights. While not agreeing altogether with the platform of the Patrons of Industry, his difference was only on minor matters. On all the main principles, however, he was in accord with them, so that practically he could subscribe, and did subscribe, to their platform. John Charlton, M.P., severely condemned the National Policy, dwelling particularly upon the hollow mockery of safeguarding the interests of the farmers of Canada by taxing every article they used, restricting their overy article they used, restricting their buying markets, and confining the limits of their selling scope. Speeches were also de-livered by James Somerville, M.P., and Grand President Mallory. The picnic was complete success, and a deep interest was anifested in the remarks of all the speakers, every reference to the iniquitous character of the National Policy being loudly cheered.
