

Improved public awareness will be important. To help address this factor, the National Biotechnology Strategy has provisionally approved funding for a project in 1995 to identify detailed ethical issues associated with biotechnology. The federal government will spearhead this initiative and will ensure the involvement of all major groups with an interest in the issue.