

IMPACT OF CFTA/NAFTA ON U.S. AND CANADIAN AGRICULTURE¹

by

Laura Dierkes, Jerry Sharples, and Linda Evers-Smith

The Canada-US bilateral component of NAFTA began on January 1, 1989 when the Canadian-US Free Trade Agreement (CFTA) went into effect. We now have over 7 years of experience

This manuscript is a product of the Canadian Studies Research Grant Program. The program promotes research in the social sciences, journalism, business, trade, environment, and law with a unique relevance to Canada, or in the context of the bilateral or North American relationship; and the social, cultural, political, and economic issues that impact on these relationships in the 1990s.

Research grants are designed to assist individual American scholars, a group of scholars, and/or scholars working with a cooperating Canadian institution, in writing an article-length manuscript of publishable quality that contributes to the development of Canadian Studies in the United States and reporting their findings in scholarly publications.

According to the terms and conditions of the grant, the rights of the manuscript remain the exclusive property of the researcher. Copies of the manuscript are provided to the Embassy and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade.

Trade of goods and services between the United States and Canada is important for the United States and vitally important for Canada. The same is true for agricultural trade. About 50 percent of Canada's agricultural exports go to the U.S. and 35 percent of Canada's agricultural imports come from the U.S. For the United States, 11 percent of agricultural exports go to Canada and 19 percent of imports come from Canada (4). U.S. agricultural exports to Canada totaled $5.5 billion in fiscal 1996, second only to Japan.
