

duc-at (dūc-at) a piece of money a-pol-o-gy excuse

THE "CHESAPEAKE" AND THE "SHANNON" (page 286).

un-dis-pu-ta-ble unquestionable; certain; undeniable un-dis-guis-ed open in-vin-ci-bil-i-ty the quality of being invincible, or unconquerable de-sig-nāt-ed named; called prow-ess power
mār-i-time } (mār'-e-tim) } of or belonging to the sea ep-i-ode an event dis-par-i-ty inequality in-ter-cept to cut off; to prevent cal-i-bre (kāl-e-ber) diameter, i.e., the cannon were of such diameter as to carry heavy balls le-git-i-mate usual; lawful e-merge to come out neu-tral belonging to neither; neutral-waters, i.e., a part of the ocean not belonging to either nation hal-liards (hal'yardz) the ropes by means of which the flag or a sail is raised mar-ines soldiers in a ship of war par-ri-ci-dal war a war in which relatives or fellow-countrymen kill one another; an unnatural war com-mon-wealth a republic; a free form of government, as the United States
sov-er-eign-ty command; supreme control

HOME (page 294).

dis-pense gift; bestow em-par-a-dise make like paradise; render beautiful and pleasant time-tutored age age taught by experience scep-tre an emblem of power pa-geant-ry show; pomp; display be-nign-ly calmly; happily

WESTMINSTER ABBEY (page 296).

clois-ters places of religious retirement in-scrip-tion that which is written on a tablet or tombstone