

iv The C O N T E N T S.

The principal disadvantages of France with re-

- | | |
|---|-----|
| gard to trade | 30 |
| 1. The arbitrariness of their government | ib. |
| 2. The Romish religion | 31 |
| 3. As a consequence of that, the great number of religious of both sexes | 32 |
| 4. Their numerous and poor nobility | ib. |
| 5. The arbitrary manner of levying their taxes | 34 |
| 6. The Maitrises, a great clog to their trade | 35 |
| 7. Their exclusive charters and monopolies | 36 |
| 8. Their expence in the article of shipping | 37 |
| 9. The two natural vices of the French, gaming and fine clothes, a great detriment to their trade | ib. |
| 10. The bad situation of their ports | 38 |
| 11. The farming of their revenues | ib. |

The principal advantages of Great Britain with respect to trade

- | | |
|---|-----|
| | 49 |
| 1. The natural produce and commodities of the country | ib. |
| 2. The number, goodness, and situation of our ports | ib. |
| 3. The herring and cod fisheries | ib. |
| 4. The mildness of the government | 41 |
| 5. As a consequence of that, the freedom and liberty of conscience | ib. |
| 6. The repute and merit of our manufacturers for their skill and ingenuity | 42 |
| 7. The whole bulk of the people may be concerned in trade, if they please, without any disreputation to their families; which is not the case in France | ib. |
| 8. Our vast colonies on the continent of America, a singular advantage | 43 |
| 9. The advantages of the island of Jamaica, over any of the French islands, on account of its situation | ib. |