

of the alternatives you propose to the Catholics of this country opens to us a way of escape from the reproach we have incurred. Whether there is more truth in your misgivings or in my confidence the event will show, I hope, at no distant time.

I remain sincerely yours,

ACTON.

