Chief Justice Falconbridge Appears in Court Attired New Robe.

THE CRIMINAL ASSIZES OPENED

Cases of Highest Gravity and Magnitude Are Set Down for Trial.

Twenty-five years ago it was the custo Pleas and Queen's Bench to be clothed in full court dress, but since that time they ave worn simply a black silk robe like that worn by a King's counsellor. It is also the custom in England for judges at he Court of Oyer and Terminer to be simiarly vested. Now the judges here having anything to do with the trial of capital will return to the custom iso to foster a reverential spirit on the part

Rice Case Taken Up.

After advising the jurors that it was not their duty to try but to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to place a man on his trial, and suggesting that their visits be confined to the jail, his Lordship adjourned the court till 10 o'clock this morning. The Rice case was considered by the grand jury after adjournment.
