A Word to Mothers.

(From a London Kindergartner.) One reason for putting a child into a kindergarten is that he must and will have the companionship of other children. It is right that he should. Man is by nature a social being, and a child can no more be happy without the companionship of his equals than his father can. In the kindergarten world, where he finds the society he craves, he gets in songs, stories, games and work his first lessons in citizenship. These lessons are especially emphasized in the games he plays, as the principle underlying them is largely sociological. A child comes to the three-fold nature is being daily fostkindergarten from a home where for a ered, cherished and allowed to grow. long time he has been the center of a His character is being built up, and price. We have just received a telegram announcing the discovery of ore in the North Slope of the Three Chimneys, running $500 to the ton.

This find was made in the old Indian tunnel, recently discovered, men tion of which was made in the Engineer's report mailed you a few day since.

For the last tend days everything has pointed to a rich ledge about to be incovered, as small ore bodies, growing richer and more numerous, have constantly been encountered, and the mere fact that this tunnel had been put in by the Indians 75 years ago indicated that there must have been very rich ore there to have enabled them to work it at a profit with their crude and simple methods of treatment. Now that it has actually been uncovered, we have excellent cause for congratulation.

It will require several months to properly open up and develop this ledge to show its true value, but work will be rushed night and day until this is accomplished. Whatever may be the outcome, we already have sufficient to insure handsome returns for a long time to come, and shareholders are counseled against disposing of their holdings at a small profit with the idea of duplicating the same at anything like the former figure, for this cannot be great deal is said and written nowadays about the art of homenaking, while very little thought is expended upon the fact that in the home certain small miseries arise and flourish which no art can better or

In most homes there are great capabilities for happiness, and so in direct proportion of unhappiness. Not every man or woman, however, wellintentioned, true and conscientious, can make the home what it ought to be. And one of the most fruitful causes of unhappiness, next to bad temper, is to be found in poor house-

Many a woman, in every respect admirable and intelligent beyond the average, cannot entirely grasp the mysteries of housekeeping. And that it is not a matter of intelligence is shown by the fact that some of the best and most skillful housewives have been those who turned their attention to little else than the ordering of their dinners and the scrupulous neatness of their homes. And who shall say that these did not make a success of housekeeping? So many, many things enter into the housekeeping for the good or ill of the household. The wife or housekeeping sister may be orderly, the husband or brothers the reverse, or the wife totally regardless of system, while the husband counts a misplaced article or a late breakfast an unnardonable sin, for which no future punctuality or neatness may condone, and these things occurring day after day, year in and year out, a constant struggle ensues. which renders life a martyrdom. The fatally shot. The shooting was so general that it was impossible to tell more trivial the occasion, the more bitter the sense of defeat. 'Oh," said a woman whose house keeping was to her as the grinding of the pilgrim's pebbles in his shoes, 'I know I am a miserable failure as a housekeeper. I can do half a dozen things well, but I cannot keep house." Now, there is no more reason in the world why that woman should wear herself into nervous prostration trying to do a thing that in all her life she will never compass than there is that any man should become a lawyer when his tastes and aptitude are for medicine or mechanism. "My wife and I are much fonder of each other since we sit down every day with a dozen people than when we dined alone," said a jolly husband, who went through life very respectably and happily, though he never had a home. It is sad, but nevertheless true, that the dispositions of some couples change entirely for the better as soon as they are freed from the shackles of housekeeping. Fault-finding ceases, anxious lines smooth away, and both husband and wife draw a long breath of relief. I have known a most devoted husband and wife who, after the various domestic complications caused by the civil war, looked the matter of house keeping squarely in the face. could not, without great personal exertion and untold worry, take up housekeeping on a totally different basis from that with which she was familiar, and her husband was wise and considerate enough to accept her view of the situation. And to the end of their lives they boarded. So it goes. Work that to one woman is pleasant, to another one is irksome;
