WESTERN HOPES ARE HIGH.

The first call for the annual army of harvesters is coming from the west, and the eyes of the country are turning in that direction. The western crop has become such a determining factor in the prosperity of the country that there is always a period of intense anxiety when the race between the harvest and the frost begins.

Western journals are sounding a cheerful note, and reproving eastern pessimists. The Edmonton Bulletin complains that some Ontario newspapers are representing the prairie crop as next thing to a failure, and suggests that they are trying to divert attention from unfavorable conditions nearer home. Westerners may be assured that the people of Ontario rejoice to hear favorable news from the western provinces, where Ontario money is liberally invested, and where Ontari industries find a great and growing market. There is no jealousy of western prosperity in this section of the country.

The Bulletin admits that the crop in Western Canada is late, and will not show the phenomenal increases of recent years, but the late spring was common to the whole country. "More than this," says the Bulletin, "the growth of the western crop since spring really opened, has been such as Ontario people kno wnothing about, and it is a conservative statement that our grain has 'caught up' more of the early delay already than the Ontario people know nothing about, entire summer. Though delayed six weeks at most by the backward weather of spring, grain in Central Alberta is not now more than two or three weeks behind the average. The rains of June and July provided abundance of moisture for rapid growth, while the hot dry weather of part of July provided conditions for maturing which could not be improved upon. In consequence our crops show but little evidence of their early delay and promise a uniform yield of high average."

The Bulletin adds that while in Manitoba some areas formerly under grain are devoted to other purposes, this is more than counterbalanced by the newly-broken ground in Alberta and Saskatchewan now maturing its first crop of grain. The crop area of the west will be greatly in excess of last year.

The Saskatoon Phoenix says the wheat harvest will not start until the last week in August or the first week in September, but thinks the chances of safety are as good in the early days of September as a week or ten days sooner. "During the past three years," it says, "there has been no frost to work any widespread hurt till October, and that too after comparatively early spring seasons. It is not altogether unreasonable to anticipate that after the late prolonged winter the summer season may be slightly extended."

Making allowance for the incurable optimism of westerners there is every reason to think there will be no such thing as a crop disaster this year.

A CITY MADE TO ORDER.

Gary is the name of a city which has been planned to order, and is being rapidly built on the southeastern shore of Lake Michigan, in the State of Indiana, within half an hour's ride by rail from Chicago. Where a little over a year ago there was a waste of sand hillocks is rapidly rising a modern city. It is the project of the United States Steel Corporation, which originally appropriated towards it the sum of $78,000,000, and to which an additional sum of $45,000,000 has recently been given.

The object of the promoters is to make the city of Gary the steel capital of the world. Three thousand men are engaged in the work of city building, and the number is being constantly added to. According to the plans as at present the city will accommodate a population of 300,000. The site embraces 6,000 acres, with over six miles of a lake frontage, and with possibilities as to extension inland limited only by the boundaries of the prairies. The preliminary work has advanced with remarkable activity. The sandhills and hillocks have been leveled, and the sand has been utilized to fill up the shallow beach, the swamps of the Grand Calumet River, which at this point empties its sluggish waters into the lake, and other low-lying lands. By this means and by dredging the site, the future industrial city has been given an elevation of 22 feet above Lake Michigan's level. A harbor has been formed by dredging deep enough to admit the heaviest freighters bringing iron ore to the contemplated iron and steel mills from the Lake Superior region.

The mills and the homes of those who will operate them have, of course, first claim on the attention of the builders, the convenience, health and comfort of the future inhabitants receiving every consideration. At the same time architectural effect and beauty have not been lost sight of. Parks, playgrounds, promenades, theaters and all the pleasures and conveniences common to modern city life are provided for. The river has been made a uniform width of 250 feet, with steel bridges for the accommodation of the four trunk lines of railway centering there to distribute the mills' products. The tearing up of streets for gas, water and electric mains will be unknown in Gary, for, with the experience of other cities in mind, care is being taken to lay all mains and pipes in the alleyways at a uniform level. In short, everything has been planned to 'make Gary a model, up-to-date city. Already it has its Broadway, running a distance of some three miles, with cement sidewalks and two miles of business blocks on either side. The experiment is a notable one, and so bold that it deserves to be successful.

PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

The laboring classes in Great Britain have now a larger representation in the House of Commons than ever before, and with one of themselves, Mr. John Burns, in the ministry, they evidently believe that the present is an opportune time to seek legislation in their own interests. The problem of the unemployed is receiving special attention. A bill recently introduced by one of the labor members, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, deals with this question on new lines. The ground is taken that Great Britain is destined to have always an unemployed class. it cannot be disputed that change of method by the introduction of machinery is one of the chief causes of displacing many men trained in one line of work. Some of these succeed in turning their hands to other work, but others, lacking the adaptability, are unable to do so, though, doubtless, no less willing. Consequently there sooner or later comes a time when these latter become a public burden. What makes their position less bearable is the old country prejudice against taking a man from the workhouse, so that the taint of pauperism increases the difficulty of obtaining employment of any kind. Moreover, the recently passed workmen's compensation act is expected to materially add to the ranks of the unemployed, as it is found that employers are now more averse than ever to taking on men beyond a certain age.

In his bill Mr. Macdonald proposes the establishment of a central advisory committee to make suggestions to and co-ordinate the work of local committees. The latter would register the unemployed, and draw up schemes by which work may be provided, such schemes to include afforestation and the reclamation of lands and foreshores. The projects would be undertaken by the central committee. It is provided that the money necessary to carry out the work be taken from the rates, and that the imperial government grant aid in cases of emergency.

Unfortunately there is a class of men who are idle through sheer dislike of work. The bill provides that such men be taken before magistrates and committed to the care of the unemployed authority for six months, during which time they would be compelled, if necessary, to do a reasonable amount of work. It is further stipulated that any relief given under the act does not disqualify for the parliamentary or local franchise. By a system of classification of applicants for employment it will be possible to set them to work, which is most suitable, so that in all cases of physical and industrial fitness special regard shall be given to the ultimate improvement of applicants. Provision is made for the emigration of suitable and deserving cases, care to be taken that only those who are fully qualified for colonial life are assisted in making a fresh start away from home.

If the measure passes into law, it will be interesting to watch the experiment—for such its promoters, no doubt, intend it—in dealing with one of Britain's gravest social problems.

KNEW THEIR NUMBER.

[Exchange.]

"You must come and see us, my dear," said a lady to a little girl of her acquaintance. "Do you know our number?"

"Oh, yes," responded the innocent child. "Papa says you always live at sixes and sevens."

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

[Oxford (Iowa) Mirror.]

Having tired of my business, my meat market and slaughter horse are for sale. People have used me rough, and I want to leave Oxford Junction; therefore my business is for sale. Also please call and settle for the meat you have already eaten and haven't paid for. Come and pay your accounts, and if you want to buy the business, come at once. August Tech.

TOO RAPID A PACE.

[Winnipeg Telegram.]

While expansion along productive lines is the main cause of financial stringency in Canada, it is well to reflect that if the Canadian people are, on the strength of their resources cultivating habits of extravagant expenditure, they are actually diminishing their power of dealing with and developing these resources.

THE SCHOOL BOARD OUTRAGE.

[Galt Reformer.]

There is a large-sized row going on in London over the appointment made to the principalship of the Collegiate Institute by the board of education. The old game of politics "butting" into educational affairs seems to be at the bottom of the trouble.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE.

[Edmund Vance Cook.]

Did you tackle the trouble that came your way
With a resolute heart and cheerful,
Or hide your face from the light of day,
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it;
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it.

You are beaten to earth? Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face;
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's disgrace!
The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce;
Be proud of your blackened eye;
It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts,
It's how did you fight, and why?

And though you be done to the death, what then?
If you battled the best you could.
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why, the critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl or comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But only, how did you die?

THAT LONDON PEANUT.

[Ottawa Journal.]

On the top of the declaration by a Scientist of note that there is more nutriment in ten cents worth of peanuts than there is in a porterhouse steak, comes the announcement that a London man has nearly died as a result of eating one peanut. We hear too much nowadays. When you get both sides of all stories your convictions begin to get flabby.

DEFENSE OF THE BACHELOR.

[Madame.]

The modern bachelor is by no means so black as he is painted. He is simply one of those exceptional men who have been born without the genius for matrimony. To marry at all, a man requires inspiration; to marry well, aspiration; and to marry foolishly, desperation. None of these qualities have been vouchsafed to the singular being who deliberately and of malice prepense leads the single life.

EVILS OF PROCRASTINATION.

[Strand Magazine.]

An Irishman who was traveling in England for a drygoods firm, says Harry Furniss, was once showing a line of sample dress goods to a merchant who was woefully slow in making up his mind.

He handled them and rehandled them, until the commercial traveler was at his patience end. Finally the merchant asked if the goods shown were fashionable.

"They were when I first began to show them to you," replied the traveler, "but I'll be hanged if I can tell you now."

It is said that the buyer was so pleased with the answer that he pardoned the rudeness of it and became a steady customer.

COST OF AN ENGLISH GIRL.

[London Mail.]

The discussion of the cost of bringing up children continues to go on in a lively manner. The most conspicuous contribution today is the experience of a woman whose eldest daughter was presented at court this year. Her statement deals with a girl reared in such a home as that of the Eton and Oxford boy described on Saturday, and represents that the daughter cost her parents in twenty years a grand total of £7,400, an average of £370 yearly.

The details show she cost £220 yearly for the first eight years, £283 for the next six years, while in her 16th, 17th and 18th years her annual cost was £470. The mother adds that her 19th and part of her 20th year were spent in Paris and Dresden at a cost of about £750. The statement continues:

"I then took a house in London for the season, in order that she might be brought out and presented at court, an essential part of her education. I paid a dressmaker and milliner on her season account £580; a jeweler, £340; a shoemaker, £75; a coiffeur, £46; and in entertaining on her account, probably £500."

BASEBALL.

LABATTS VS. TIGERS.

A very interesting game of ball was played Saturday afternoon on Chelsea Green between the Labatt baseball team and the South End Tigers, resulting in a victory for the South End boys by a score of 7 to 5. The feature of the game was McGuire's pitching. He struck out 12 men. The lineups:

Labatts—W. Laundry, catcher; W. McGuire, pitcher; R. Brown, first base; W. Monahan, second base; A. Weston, third base; G. Loughrey, shortstop; A. Brown, left field; W. Hayes, center field; G. Monahan, right field.

TIGERS AT LAST STRIKE OLD GAIT

Donovan doubled and Charlie made third. Bobby Lowe celebrated his return to the game with a double and both O'Leary and Bill scored. Lowe was caught trying to make third. With two down they started all over again. Schaefer, Crawford, Cobb and Rossmand singled and three runs were in. Rossie's hit was a pop back of second, and while Williams and Hoffman argued as to who should have taken it, Cobb scored from first.

Downs forced Rossman at second and the fun was over.

Donovan was strong and steady in the ninth, and the Yankees' attempts to get on were futile.

The Tigers were wild with joy in the clubhouse after the game. They felt that their slump was over, and had all their old confidence back with them again.

It's Boston today.

THREE RATTLING GOOD GAMES

tion to win one of the hardest-fought games of the season.

The Wortman team took an early lead, scoring two runs in the second innings. With two out Rowe hit to McColl, who evidently imagined the first baseman was of his own elongated figure. Anyway, the smiling one heaved the ball over Tanton's head, allowing Rowe to annex the second station. Morley then, like Casey, surprised the talent, but to a different tune, slamming the ball to the grand stand for a home run.

The foundry boys had another great chance to score in the sixth, when McColl got to third on a hit and an overthrow to first. Rowe hit a scorcher to left, but the ever watchful Delaney seemed to have been expecting it, gobbling up the ball in his accustomed style.

The Oriens overtook the Ramblers in the second period. McColl was passed, and promptly pilfered second, scoring when Manager Childs hit a Texas leaguer. The manager tied the score when Flynn booted Brennan's grounder clean out of the diamond.

The game was won in the sixth, when after Woods had fanned the air for the third time, Palmer lit on the ball for a three bagger, scoring on Taylor's clean single.

THE THIRD GAME.

Having won seven consecutive games the Ramblers were about due to lose, and there is no doubt about it, they did lose the last game to the Wortmans. Their defeat cannot, however, be attributed to any fault of their own, but simply to the fact that the red uniformed men played a very superior article of ball.

Heathfield, who sends the ball across from the wrong side, did the box stunts for the leaders. He was not as effective as usual, being rather wild at times. Certainly he held the Wortman team to four scattered hits, but the Wortmans cannot be called by their most ardent supporters a hard hitting team.

Edwards, for the foundrymen, on the other hand, had splendid control, not issuing a single pass throughout the game.

The Wortmans went after the ball right from the start, scoring once in the first inning without a hit. It was done this way. Tanton worked the generous "Pidgeon" for a pass, and Anderson took one of the erratic twirler's inshoots in the ribs. After McConnell flew out to Shannon, Carruthers hit to shortstop, who got the runner at third. Sherritt threw badly to second trying for a double and Anderson scored.

Another was forthcoming in the third period on Morley's hit, Wagner's error, Tanton's hit over first, and Penwarden's muff of Anderson's fly.

It was "nothing doing" for the Ramblers till the fifth. Then Penwarden redeemed himself by lining out a two bagger, scoring on Edwards' wild pitch.

During our last sale of Embroideries, held a few days ago, a great many of our customers came too late asking for the bargains their neighbors had come for earlier in the day, but we tell you frankly some of the best bargains do not last all day—in many cases they go before noon of the day we tell of them. For instance, fifty pairs of lace curtains will not go round one hundred people. But it's a fact, if you miss one snap, there's no doubt you'll get another. All the news cannot be told. No details today of the sale of Ladies' Waists at half price; no special mention of the sale of Boys' Blouses at half price; no description of the Tweed Dress Goods at half price; besides many other good things are crowded out. Nevertheless, all we print is good news.
