Saved Young Duke From Falling Into Her Clutches.

INTERVIEW AT BUCKINGHAM

Pretty Story of How His Majesty Blocked the Machinations of the Fascinating Mrs. Atherton.

London, Aug. 5.-Mrs. Atherton, who has just been divorced by her husband, Col. Atherton, is the type of woman who make history and domestic tragedy. Five or six years ago she was the talk of South Africa, and the fame of her capers there soon spread to England, and every boudoir in London echoed with tales of her goings on. This was in the days of the South Africani war, and Mrs. Atherton divided interest with Dewet and Buller and Roberts; in fact, in certain circles she was more spoken about than any one of the three popular generals. She is the style of woman for whom men, more especially boys under five-and-twenty, sacrifice honor and gold galore. Her specia prey in South Africa was a duke, a boy just one-and-twenty, heir to a princely fortune, and whom she knew to be engaged to a beautiful girl, with whom he had grown up. He had been in love with this girl all his life until he fell into the toils of Mrs. Atherton, who literally gave him no chance of escape, 9:00. All these trains run through to pursuing him from post to post. Flattered by her attentions he lost his head. forgot, too, his fiancee, and was in the very act of eloping with her when his soldier-servant, who had found it out. whispered the secret to the colonel of the regiment, who promptly frustrated until 10:30 p.m., and on Saturdays a Mrs. Atherton's move, and in less than a week afterward the duke was recalled to England and his family made award of the intrigue. The mother of his flancee proved his best friend in the matter, for were it not for her there is no doubt Mrs. Atherton would still have got him back. The lady in question went straight to the King, explained to him what was neapolis and St. Paul, Minn. happening, told him of her daughter's grief and showed how disastrous it On Aug. 10, 11 and 12, Wabash agents would be fore the credit of society were will sell round trip tickets to Minne- a duke to run away with and probably apolis or St. Paul, at a much lower rate end by marrying a woman of Mrs. Aththat the one way fare, good until Aug. erton's reputation. If you do you will be sorry to the day of your death. I know these women. I know them." The upshot was before the boy left Buckingham Palace he had promised the King that in less than a month his discarded fiancee would be his wife. And
