RELIGIOUS LIFE AND CHURCH

testimony is borne in an article in the current American, by Ray Stannard Baker, to a phase of religious life in America which may well lead earnest Christians to take heed to their ways. From many of the most prominent and sincere clergymen and ministers in New York he gathers "eluctant statements of retrogression, The The churchless Protestant population is largely in excess of the churched, and the number of those in church connec-

Rates are not reduced because the cable monopoly is earning large profits and it prefers to earn them thru a restricted service at high rates rather than thru an expanded service at low

This point is very clearly explained by George Bernard Shaw in his book on "The Common-sense of Municipal Trading." Dealing with commercial and municipal prices he uses the Atlantic cable monopoly to illustrate his point. "Let the problem be," he says, "to fix the price per word of a cable message, say, to the United States. Here there is clearly no single most profitable price. The difference between the cost of sending one message a day and 20(is negligible; consequently the profit on one message a day at a pound and twenty messages at a shilling apiece is the same. Still, it saves trouble to send one message instead of 20; so the commercial tendency will be to charge a pound. At present, accordingly, cabling to the United States is an expensive luxury. The charge is a shilling a word, and a couple of tiny offices in Northumberland-avenue. in which one never finds as many as two customers at the same time, suffice for all the people in that populous centre. who wish to avoid the crowding in the postal telegraph offices. It is difficult to believe that a sweeping reduction in this heavy charge would reduce profits, however much it might multiply cables, offices, plant and staff. But it is not certain that it would increase profits, and if it did not the company I wild have reduced their charges and

Another Step in Early Closing

No Noon Delivery on Saturday

During June, July and August, the most enjoyable outdoor months of the year, we close at one o'clock on Saturday, so that our staff may have one half-holiday weekly for recreation. But the great amount of business done on Friday evening and Saturday morning entails so much work for our Drivers that they cannot get through with noon delivery until late on Saturday afternoon. And that our Drivers, too, may have Saturday afternoon as a holiday, we shall not deliver until Monday any of Saturday's purchases.

We ask you this indulgence so that our whole staff may benefit by the Saturday half-holiday.
