Springtime Talk on Oriental Rugs

Spring is coming, and so is housecleaning. It is the time of year when every owner of Oriental Rugs should have them cleaned. We have imported as manager of our Rug Washing and Cleaning Department one of the best experts. We can guarantee an excellence of results never before obtained in this country. The process is the genuine Persian process, and not only takes out all the dirt, dust and stain from the rugs, but destroys all germs and moth-eggs.

Send For Our Booklet on Rug Cleaning

As a special inducement for extra early Spring orders, we will wash, dry and press Oriental Rugs for the extremely low price of 2/3c a square foot. Telephone and rugs will be called for and delivered.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE

Crew Drank Salt Water and Succumbed to Scoury.

SEATTLE, March 31.—The Japanese schooner Chofu Maru, sent from Yokohama to the South Sea Islands, had a terrible voyage, during which five men died of scurvy. Twenty others were greatly emaciated when the schooner put into Yokohama just before the sailing of the Awa Maru for Seattle, according to reports brought by that steamship, which has just arrived. After a call in the Carolines, the schooner left Parao Island on Jan. 9 for Japan, and soon encountered a hurricane. She drifted aimlessly about a crew of 25 being short of rations, but one cup of water a day for each man. On Feb. 11 the water was exhausted, and the unfortunate crew used salt water. One after another, five of the crew succumbed to the scurvy, the captain and one other dying within eight days. The survivors were literally skin and bone, and doctors sent on board had to carry them from the vessel.

PASSENGERS ON TRAIN SAW CRIME COMMITTED

Assassin Paid No Heed to Unexpected Witnesses of His Deed.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Passengers arriving early this evening by a New York Central train had a horrifying introduction to a crime when sudden application of the emergency brakes brought the train almost squarely opposite a double tragedy which was being enacted in Park-avenue. A well-dressed man was seen to draw a revolver from his pocket, shoot down a strikingly pretty blonde woman and turn the weapon upon himself. The engineer, who was seated at the controls, threw on his brakes and shouted to the unknown man on the street: "Hold on, don't shoot her, don't shoot!"

The assassin paid no heed to the unexpected witness to his deed and took deliberate aim at the woman as she started to run. Another passenger entered her mouth and another lodged in her breast. After a momentary contemplation of the crime, he placed the weapon at his own temple, fired, and sank to the street by the woman's side.

Passengers who had looked on powerless to interfere were horrified, and as soon as the engineer saw that his warning was not heeded, he pulled his train into the station.

The man was dead when the police arrived, and the woman has little chance of recovery. It was said at the hospital to-night a card issued by the Carpenters' Union was found in the man's pocket, with the name of Jacob Shontz.

He was further identified as the son of Rudolph Stupniczy, a millionaire lumberman of Austria, who died several years ago, leaving the son Jacob $100,000. According to a fellow member in the carpenters' union, who said he had known him from childhood, Jacob came to America, changed his name to Shontz and soon dissipated his fortune. He was married, the informant said, and only two months ago sent his wife back to Austria, because they did not agree.

The case was further complicated to-night by the arrival of a woman who claimed the man's body as that of her husband. A man called at the hospital and identified the woman victim, still hovering between life and death, as Mrs. Mary Czaplewicz of this city.

The Psychology of Voice Production

Famous New York Teacher Gives
"Musical America" His Views on Relation of Tone and the Mind.

In his New York studio, which, by the way, is one of the most attractive and handsomely appointed music halls in the metropolis, Vladimir Klamroth gave "Musical America" a representative view on vocal culture.

"I have often been asked to give concisely my method of teaching singing," said Mr. Klamroth. "That is almost an impossibility, since I might say that I have as many methods as I have pupils. Each one must be separately studied to find out what method of procedure appeals most to him, leading up to the same results. As a rule, I first give the pupil a simple scientific explanation of the process of breathing and singing, namely, the diaphragmatic and thoracic or rib-breathing combined. This explanation I best accomplish by original rough drawing of a section of the human body showing the breathing apparatus. By means of various exercises he learns this manner of breathing, after which comes the application to the tone, which results in the support of the tone."

"When this is grasped the pupil is ready for the so-called placing of the voice, and he enters the psychological aspect. I say so-called for it is not that we actually place vibrations, and for the very good reason that vibrations cannot be placed. Once created they continue their oscillation until their force is exhausted. The placing of the voice forward means to get such an adjustment of the vocal chords in relation to the resonators that a quality of tone is produced that seems to be forward and even feels forward.

"It depends upon the pupil whether it is necessary to teach this according to this prescription, or to proceed alone or by appealing first to the mind before the effort for expression is made. To be more explicit, all qualities of vocal tone are due to the process of the mind. It is a well-known fact that the quality of the voice and the facial expression in speech are a reflection of the thought. One can therefore reverse this and say that the thought controls the quality of the voice and the facial expression. If this is true of the voice in speech it must needs be true of the voice in singing.

Without a clear enunciation the singer destroys that vital thing that makes his superior art. A well-produced tone without clear enunciation is not satisfying; clear enunciation with a badly produced tone is time wasted, but the combination, the well-made tone sustaining on its even floor every

Contagious Diseases

March Report Shows Increase in Cases of Scarlet Fever and Measles.

The medical health department report on the contagious diseases for March shows a remarkable increase in the number of scarlet fever cases over the corresponding period of last year. There is also an increase in the number of cases of measles, but this is explained by the fact that they were not generally reported last year. The figures are:

	Mar. 1911.	Mar. 1910.
Measles	87	1
Scarlet fever	441	155
Typhoid	58	115
Diphtheria	101	82

There were no cases of smallpox reported during the month of March either year.

GIVE THE BOY A CHANCE
Make a Policeman or Reporter of Him, Advises Chief.

LONDON, April 1.—The talk of immorality in the boys' and young men's clubs has led Chief Williams to express his views on theological education. "What are the boys going to do?" the chief enquires. "Some of them don't like the Y. M. C. A. Some of them are not ready to stay home every night and read. Are they to be on the streets? They must either go there or to the clubs which they form themselves. It is only one boy in a dozen who is content to stay at home and read every night. The ones that do will not amount to much in after life either. They might make ministers, but nothing else. And they will be the kind of ministers who read nice little sermons dealing with problems of which they know little or nothing. "If I had a son who felt called—as they say—to the ministry, I would take different means of educating him from that usually adopted," and the chief emphasized the remark with a tap of his cane.

PLAGUE INVADERS JAVA.

AMSTERDAM, April 1.—Reports of a serious outbreak of the plague are coming from the southeastern portion of Java, but the colonial ministry declares that they have no knowledge of the matter. It is stated that 250 cases, of which 221 proved fatal, have occurred in various districts there.
