New York, July 12.—Two steam-ships disappeared from the Hudson River above 135th Street some time River above 135th Street some time between sunset, Friday, and sunrise Saturday, almost as mysteriously as ships have been dropping out of sight treal. missing vessels are the Penza and Tobolsk of the Russian volunteer fleet, which has headquarters at 44 White-

The vessels vanished soon after a suit was begun in the federal district court by the Russian Socialist. Fed. Ing. crated Soviet Republic, through its counsel, Charles Recht, 110 West Fortieth Street, to get possession of the craft. On application of counsel, a libel was issued, but by the time the papers were placed in the hands of the U. S. marshal, the ships to be held and weighed anchor, hall Street.

Search of the entire water front of su begun by deputies from the Unit States marshal's office without thing a trace of the ships. The arch was confined to the New York side, and included all the vacant piers of Manhattan and Brooklyn, even all the creeks and other islets and the drydook.

of Mannattan and Brooklyn, even all the release and other drydock.

The activities of two special investigators assigned to the search by counsel for the Soviet Republic also were unproductive of results. At nightfall Recht admitted that he was nonplussed and took himself off to a little island off Besbylon, L. L. to try to get cool.

Before leaving search for the vessels to the United States marshal and his own assistants, Recht made inquiries of the port warden to ascertain whether clearance papers were required of the ships, and if so what was their destination. He was introfered by the office of the port warden that the vessels were Government-own-loved ships, and that in such cases it was not customary to require clearance. That ended the last hope the Soviet representatives in this port had of tracing the movements of the two vessels except by their own efforts.

Expect To Find Them.

Recht expressed himself as confident that the fugitive vessels would turn up and that no matter where cover they were he would use every instrument of the law to bring them back, and have the question of ownerahip sorted.

decided.

Recht said the ships, whose recovery he is seeking for the Soviet Government, were part of a fleet of no small proportions under the control of Boris Bakhmatleff, at one time representative in this country of the Kerensky revolutionary Government and Government Governm succeeding counter - revolutionary movements in Russia. Agents of Bak hmatieff are said to have got posses-sion of the vessels through an attach-ment issued while they were in Cuban Claims Sale Unauthorized.

As soon as the libel was issued, ling Recht wired Secretary of State Jaban Bakhmatieff a certificate as Am who bassador, which would be required of him before he could appear in a federal court. Recht is prepared to place on Secretary Hughes' action Mong federal sourt. Recht is prepared to place on Secretary Hughes' action in this matter, if it be unfavorable to Bakhmatieff, an interpretation factorable to the Soviet republic.

It is set forth in the libel that the Penza is a vessel of about 2,800 tons and Tobolsk about 2,600 tons; that the possession of the vessels is wrongfully withheld by Ivan V. Shestakowsky, and the Russian volunteer fleet, and John Roe and Phik Richard Roe, on alleged ground of title to the possession of the sail vessels, through a sale, which, if it ever took place was unauthorized.

The two ships, Recht says, are part of the merchant marine the Russian Empire set out to build thirty years ago.

in a hunt for $175,000 worth of uncut Berk diamonds, believed to have been stolten from a Pullman car at Trenton.

Joseph Haskell, a New York jewes, merchant, had the diamonds in a small black handbag, which he placed under his seat in the train for Pittshurgh. He left the car several times, and when the porter came to make up his berth, the bag and gems were gone.

Remaining on the train until it brown treached Philadelphia, Haskell notified the police there and wired a business associate in New York to put detectives on the trail. He has furnished a list and description of the gems. Haskell was absent from the car from which the bag disappeared twice during his trip, once in the Pennsylvania station here, and again for an hour in the club car while the train also dam hour in the club car while the train dam was passing through New Jorsey. When the train pulled out from Trenham he missed the bag.
