

President Resigns Because He Had "To Do What A Man Has To Do," In The Islands

Former SU President Rob Greenhill will soon rush to defend the land where men are men, and sheep are nervous.

The tragedy of the Falkland Island's is even now affecting the everyday operations of the University of Alberta Students' Union:

SU President Robert Greenhill resigned from his executive position today as news arrived about Britain's declaration of war against Argentina and his immediate conscription into Her Majesty's Royal Navy.

Greenhill, himself a British citizen, "could not watch his beloved homeland go to battle without strong leadership," said a source close to the former president.

An SU support staff worker said, "Robert broke down as soon as he received the news of Britain's declaration."

Greenhill's exit places the SU presidency into the constitutional second-in-command, vice-president external. Teresa Gonzales occupies the position at present.

When our Enquirer special reporter tracked her down, Gonzales admitted surprise to Greenhill's sudden departure.

Friends close to Gonzales said she felt "Robert's sudden conscription appears convenient considering the SU's financial situation."

Teresa is not one to begrudge a person's loyalties.

"This is not the time to judge Robert or Britain. His country went to war, and Robert did what a man has got to do. We should be wishing him luck and a safe return." Gonzales commented.

University administrators were surprised by the British declaration but not Greenhill's action.

An unidentified administrator reported that "Robert is that kind of guy." "He's a man of principles and knows where his priorities lay. If he weren't conscripted, I'm sure he would have signed up on his own. We just saved the paper work."

Confided another friend, "Myer had great expectations for the boy. Robert demonstrated a willingness and an ability to work with the business community, University administration, and government hierarchy. Myer found these traits rare in the SU executive over the years."

Gonzales indicated that a memorial may be erected to commemorate Greenhill's "brave resolution and determination to defend his homeland and fundamental beliefs."

Danger is their business, but the 63rd Mauve Dragoons Air Squadron of the British Royal Navy never expected to be left dangling over Argentina.

Robert Greenhill will soon be joining the 63rd near the Falkland Islands.
