

etc. Mr. Maurice Scollard was a genial old man, whom, in memory, the compiler of this history sees with his venerable long white beard and twinkling eyes. He was full of merriment, jokes and fun, withal a devout Catholic, who rendered his share of assistance in the upbuilding of the Church in Toronto.

Other names are: Stewart, Bolster, McDonnell, Taylor, all ever ready to do what they could for the furtherance of parochial interests.

Francis Taylor was an Irish gentleman, who, after coming to Toronto, became a convert; he was received into the Church by Bishop de Charbonnel. His zeal and ardor knew no bounds, though, as far as possible, his life was hidden. His benefactions, both to the Church and to the needy were kept well away from prying eyes, and only on the last day will they be revealed.

Out in the country were situated the McCarthys, Murrays, O'Briens, Culetons and others who helped to found St. Basil's.
