The terrific explosion awoke the people of the town. All who approached he bank, however, were driven away by the robbers, who were armed with rifles. QUIZZING FREELY

Roosevelt is Asking Many Questions Preparatory to Writing his Message.

Washington, October 16.-President Roosevelt is working with might and main to master the problems of government which will form the subject for discussion and recommendation in his message to congress. Foreign affairs, domestic affairs, tariffs, reciprocity, revenue reforms-there are numerous large and innumerable small matters to be considered before the law-making session sets in.

To have general notions about publie matters is one thing; to have specific grounds for definite recommendations is quite another. For a gentleman hunting bob cats and doing edsy magazine stunts the general notions are sufficient; for the chief executive of the United States there is all the responsibility of the country's welfare depending on a correct solution of the confronting problem President Roosevelt is not a man to shirk responsibilities. He intends to deliver to congress a message which will say something. He proposes to set forth the condition of public affairs and to make recommendations standing the language in which they are framed Nobody knows as yet what a single recommendation in Roosevelt's message will be. He has taken no one into his confidence. He has talked to many senators, cabinet officers and politicians, and has asked as many questions as Li Hung Chang; he has argued and discussed debatable matters and some visitors have gone away thinking they can make a fair guess as to what he thinks about them. But it has all been guesswork on their part.

The idler ne'er is satisfied To take his ease and shirk, But takes it on him to deride The simple folk who work.

Rage is essentially vulgar, and nev er more vulgar than when it proceeds from mortified pride, disappointed amition and thwarted wilfulness.-Cole-

EXPLAINS HIS CASE

Interviewed he States Positively that he does not Believe his Life is in Danger.

n Interesting case reported from Quebec City Three Years ago is Reviewed by an Interview with the Principal Witness.

Quebec, Oct. 16, (Special)—A remark-able example of the wonderful perma-nancy of the cures effected by Dodd's Kidney Pills is the case of Mr. Sam

Desrochers, of this city.
For five years preceding May, 1898,
this gentleman suffered from diabetes.
He tried many remedies, but got no help until he heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

The first box convinced him that they were helping him, and he continued until he was completely cured.

Many of Mr. Desrochers' friends thought that the cure claimed was not a permanent one, and that the diabetes would return as soon as he stopped taking the medicine, which he did in

"Yes, much of it is only apple buttermine," added Mrs. Cawker.

"The King's English, you know."

"The was in the mediche, which he did in 1898.

In order to be satisfied on the question Mr. Desrochers was interviewed the other day.

"Some three years ago a statement was published saying that you had suffered with Diabetes for five years previously, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills had cured you. Were you really cured?" was the question asked him. "Look at me," said he. "Do I look as if I had diabetes now if I am as well a man as there is in the province, and it is all due to the Dodd's Kidney Pills. I did have Diabetes, and five boxes cured me, and cured me to stay cured. This was in May, 1898, and I have not since had the slightest symptom of the King's English, you know."

Unidentified Dead Bodies a Source "There's all sorts of ways of making a living, and I've seen many queer things in this line," said an attache of the coun-ty hospital, "but the strangest of all is ty hospital, "but the strangest of all is that of being a 'fake relative.' Don't know what that is, hey? Well, neither did I until I came here, but it's a great graft all the same, and it gets the money. "We are continually receiving at the morgue here the bodies of unidentified men and women. Death is frequently the result of suicide or accident. In either case the newspapers print a pretty fair case the newspapers print a pretty fair description of the remains, which is fur-nished by the morgue authorities in the to identify the body and thus save the county expense. "Then the 'fake relatives' get in their work. There is a lot of these harpies but it is seldom they interfere with one another. They seem to recognize the the scene is usually left free to work the claim. The 'fake relative' has studied the Progressive physicians use and advise Stuart's Catarrh Tablets because they contain no cocaine, no opiate, no enervating drug whatever, but are composed of grantees because they contain the composed of grantees because they could be a series of the dead person.

Catarrh sufferers who have wasted ime and money on local applications bould not despair of a radical cure ntil a trial of Stuart's Catarrh Tabits has been made.

He asserts that the body is that of a cousin or something of that sort and leaves with the avowed intention of making arrangements for the funeral as soon as the inquest is over.

"A day or so later a genuine relative shows up, and the fakir makes it his business to be near at hand. He convinces the genuine mourner that he is a distant cousin and announces his intention of defraying all the expenses of the funeral, which is welcome news to the funeral, which is welcome news to the real relative. But he is a little short to-day, having given all his spare currency to the undertaker as a guarantee payment, and if the mourner would like to chip in $5 or $10 for flowers or carriages, why, it would be acceptable. Glad to get out of the heavy tax incident to burial, the real relative generally unbelts, and the fakir disappears for a day or two, until the coast is clear for another opera-tion of the same kind.
"Why don't the hospital authorities break up the practice? Well, there's lots of reasons. One is that those who are victimized rarely make complaint."
